LONDON LETTER

LYTTON REPORT WINS CORDIAL PRAISE

BERNARD SHAW "TOO DULL TO BE GOOD."

THE BRITISH INDUSTRIES FAIR

(BY "TOWNSMAN")

The Lytton Report.

London, Oct. 3.—The text of the Lytton Report is published and no standard of public service could have decided a better piece of work. Lord Lytton and his men have firmly concentrated their service upon winning the good will of the disputant parties, to the end that a fair and workable scheme be found. Not one word does it contain of academic or even juridical comment, still less of censure, about the past. The spirit of the Report encourages the willing co-operation of all concerned. It happens that Great Britain holds a peculiar position, and cannot escape a peculiar responsibility, in the Far East. Her prestige is great and she has an opportunity for a joint moral leadership with the United States in this matter, such as may produce incalculable good. The Report indicates the practical lines that such leadership should pursue, and if this is wisely done, the fair interests of Japan, China and the external Powers should alike be satisfied.

Defaulters to the League Fund.

At a meeting of the Budget Committee it was revealed that some countries had not paid their contributions for several years, the amount due being about £1,200,000. Sir Hilton Young, the British delegate, made an unsuccessful attempt to get the salaries of the League officials reduced, but this proposal will be revived. Representatives of Chile and Uruguay confessed they had not paid their contributions for two years, but the former added that his Government had never failed to give the League its moral support.

Crude-Oil Engine for Graf Zeppelin.

The well-known Augsburg Engineering concern—the Maschinenfabrik-Augsburg-Nürnberg—has begun the construction of a special 1,000 h.p. Diesel crude-oil engine, which is to be installed experimentally in the airship Graf Zeppelin. This new engine is the outcome of laboratory experiments and factory tests, extending over a number of years, which were carried out at M.A.N. works at Augsburg, and were mainly concerned with overcoming the great difficulty of weight. It has at last been found possible to construct a crude-oil Diesel engine which does not exceed the weight of a carburettor (combustion) engine, and in which, it is claimed, the danger of fire is practically eliminated, while running costs can be reduced to one-third. After the Zeppelin engine is completed, the Augsburg works intend to construct a variety of types of crude-oil engines suitable for tractors, motor-cars, and locomotives.

Lindrum Wins Again.

The match in which Lindrum conceded Newman 2,500 starts was concluded at Thurston's Hall in Leicester Square, London on Oct. 8th when Lindrum won by 79 points. The original arrangement was that the Australian player should concede that start in a fortnight's play, but as Lindrum had so much the better of the play, it was decided to begin another week's game this afternoon, Lindrum conceding his opponent 3,000 points.

Six Weeks' Only.

Evidently the critic who referred to Bernard Shaw's latest play "Too True to be Good" as "too dull to be good" has supporters, for the production is to be withdrawn from the New Theatre before the end of the month, by which time it will have run about six weeks. The author received the news placidly, remarking that those who liked his plays were intelligent but poor, adding that theatre prices must be reduced if drama is to flourish. It is certainly unexpected, especially after the lengthy run enjoyed by "The Apple Cart."

From to-morrow—Oct. 10—in one of the West-End London theatres "members of the audience who do not like the play sufficiently to remain after the second act will have their entrance money refunded." Why not let the hearer wait until the end and then pay what he thinks the performance is worth?

Advertising the World's Fair.

The National Union of Manufacturers and other industrial bodies are protesting to the Government against the economy decision to cut off the grant of £25,000 for advertising the British Industries Fair abroad. The decision was announced by Major Colville in the House of Commons in July as a matter of economy, with the effect that the organisers of the Exhibition have had no money to carry out their usual preliminary campaign for next February's Fair, or advertising in daily and trade newspapers in the Dominions and throughout the world. In order to raise revenue for advertising, it has now been decided to charge an admission fee of two shillings to both overseas and home buyers, who have hitherto had free season tickets. It is not thought that buyers who come to London to do business will be discouraged by having to pay 2/-, although the total attendance at the Fair is certain to go down. Those who are urging the Government to continue the grant, think that the expenditure of a few thousand pounds is well repaid by export orders through spreading the renown of the Fair throughout the world.

NOISES FROM BODYWORK

Patience Needed.

In view of the multitude of framing joints and the innumerable points of contact between panels, doors, and doorposts, etc., that occur in the body of a car, it is hardly surprising that noises of various kinds and of varying degrees of intensity are prone to develop. Often some of these noises will "cure themselves," but more often they persist and multiply unless patient effort is directed towards their elimination.

The patience of Job is indeed called for sometimes in tracing and stopping body creaks, rattles, and squeaks. The process of elimination is a good one to apply, so far as possible. Thus a passenger should be asked to hold open each door in turn, just a few inches, so that it can be noted whether or not the noise then continues. If it stops when any one door is ajar, clearly the noise emanates from that door or some point with which it makes contact.

Door hinges, door stops, and dovetails are very prone to suggest a "canary" on the car; a smear of oil at the various points is the obvious cure. A smear, be it noted, not a swamp that will soil passengers' clothes in entering and leaving the car. A point that sometimes escapes notice is that certain types of dovetails and stops are adjustable; the failure of owners to make use of this feature is accountable for recurrent annoyance due to creaks and rattles.

A frequently unsuspected source of noise is the sliding roof; it may drum when open and "chatter" when closed. The cause in both cases is generally due to insecure locking devices, which can, however, usually be made firm quite easily by new screws or packing under one part or the other.

Door hinges rarely receive attention. Consequently, either the pins rust in the plates and the hinge-screws loosen in the door pillars or the pins and plates wear and permit rattle. A few drops of "penetrating" oil occasionally, or even engine oil diluted with paraffin, will prevent such defects from developing.

Elusive Noise.

A most elusive noise—between a squeak and a creak—will sometimes be traced to the rubber strip or strips forming the waterproof joint between the driving screen and the framework surrounding it. A smear of soft soap—not oil—will stop this noise for a long while, if not permanently.

Noises ranging from squeaks to positively alarming thuds on rough roads will be heard if one or more of the bolts that hold the body to the chassis should be loose. They are prone to loosen by their heads sinking farther into the wooden "runners" or foundation timbers of the body. Usually there are four or six of these bolts, with their nuts inside the channel of the chassis. As a rule there will be two, one each side, under the front floorboards in line with the scuttle, and two, or four, behind the front seat. In the case of a new car it is as well to apply a spanner to all these nuts after three months or so, and subsequently every twelve months.

Squeaks, from the front or rear springs and their shackle pins will often seem to arise from the bodywork; on the other hand, a loose seat board at the rear may sound like something badly amiss with the rear axle.

The window-winding mechanism within the door panels may cause quite a "mysterious" noise after it has developed wear, sounding very much like an aeroplane engine just overhead. Usually it occurs only and always within a certain range of speed—viz., that at which the engine—as most engines "do"—gives rise to "periodic" vibration. The latter may also cause drumming of the petrol tank, scuttle, and bonnet. As this form of vibration cannot be eliminated—unless it is due to worn bearings—the parts that are affected by it must be prevented from setting up "sympathetic vibration" and the noises arising therefrom.

CARS OF 1933

NEW RILEY MODELS

Riley cars have earned a good reputation for speed combined with hard work, and the range for the new season, has been further enlarged. There are 12 types of bodywork and 11 chassis variations, while for every model there is a choice of eight colour schemes. For a number of years the Riley company have specialized in making chassis and body look one unit, and exceptionally low chassis, sloping radiators, and streamlining make the new models well in the fashion.

There is the 9-h.p., with its 4-cylinder engine of 1,080 c.c. capacity, four speeds, and wheel-base and track of 8ft. 11in. and 4ft. The next in order is the 6-cylinder Twelve, also with an overhead valve engine, of 57mm. and 93.2mm. bore and stroke. Here the wheel-base is 9ft. 6in. The 14-h.p. is rather larger in the bore, being 60.3mm., and this makes the capacity 1,633 c.c. There is a long wheel-base Fourteen, with a measurement of 10ft. 6in. and a track of 4ft. 8in. An entirely new chassis is the 12-h.p., which is very similar to the 6-cylinder Fourteen, but with its bore and stroke of 57mm. and 93.2mm. the new chassis comes into the 14-litre class. Prices range from £228 to £460. The 9-h.p. special series models cost £17 more than the standard types, while £60 is the extra charge with the 6-cylinder cars. The special series chassis, in the case of the Nines, have a two-carburettor engine, and on the Sixes three carburettors are fitted.

The New Kestrel.

Throughout the range of cars every type of bodywork is available either on the standard or on the special series chassis. As to the coachwork, perhaps the most interesting newcomer is the Kestrel, which has a striking appearance. The build is low, but head room has not been unduly sacrificed, and a suggestion of speed is conveyed by the special streamlining at the back of the car, which is brought down in a single sweep over the spare wheel to the dumb-irons. Another interesting saloon is the Falcon. Here are hinged traps over the doors in the roof, and these lift automatically when the doors are open, thus enabling passengers to get in or out without having to stoop. On the long wheelbase 6-cylinder chassis there are two six-light saloons of conventional but dignified appearance. They are known as the Edinburgh and Edinburgh de Luxe, the latter having a glass partition between the front and rear seats making it a chauffeur-driven car. Two types of open bodywork are supplied—namely, a sports 4-seater, the Linx, and a sports 2-seater, the Gamecock.

There are also two coupes, the Lincoln, having a fixed head, and the Ascot, which is a three-quarter drophead with a dicky seat. The deservedly popular Monaco body is being continued with improvements on the 6-h.p. chassis, while a somewhat similar style, known as the Montone, is available on the new Twelve. The Alpine and the Stelio saloons are fitted respectively on the standard and long wheelbase 14-h.p. chassis. Sunshine roofs are fitted throughout, even on the Falcon, with its trapdoors. The customary equipment now includes a single panel opening windscreen with an electric wiper with tandem blades, and the ordinary finish is stainless steel, the lamps being black enamelled with chromium plated rims.

NEAR AND FAR

Thumbs Down.

Danger signals given by one motorist to another were described to a British court recently. A motorist told a constable that he had "been receiving thumbs down from motorists all the way from Cardiff. You don't think I would have gone wrong in any way after being given all those warning, do you?" he added.

Age and Driving.

A correspondent to the Autocar writes:—I am in my seventy-third year, and even now do not consider that 200 miles or more for a day's drive is exceptional. Two days before my sixty-ninth birthday I left home at 7.12 a.m. and drove to Lanark, in Scotland (354 miles), arriving before 9 p.m., and having stopped for lunch, tea, etc., a considerable time on the journey. From there I went up to John O'Groats, and returned to reach home after having driven 1,400 miles in 71 days. I drove the car myself throughout.

Last month I drove a car and caravan a fair part of a tour of 1,300 miles to Fort William and back. As I say, one is just as old as one feels.

Long Ago.

We emptied the car of her passengers, examined and oiled all her brakes, then went back to the turn so as to be ready to give a push behind should she stick on the ascent.—The Autocar.

New or Second-hand?

There are as many arguments in favour of buying a good second-hand car as there are in favour of buying a brand-new model. Steele Griffiths, of Westminster, have issued a leaflet in which the following appears:—

"The reader may rest assured that he is wise in buying a good 'used' car if he (or she) comes within the following categories:—

- (a) Those who desire to have a car of more dignity and higher quality than they could afford if they purchased a new car.
- (b) Those requiring reliable transport at the most inexpensive rates.
- (c) Those who wish to buy a second or third car for other members of the family to learn on, or to use regularly (thus freeing the family 'main' car for business or other purposes).
- (d) Those who are new to motoring and do not wish to risk learning or practising on a brand-new car.
- (e) Those requiring a car for a short period with a minimum depreciation (e.g., those 'on leave')."

It seems that there are not many other kinds of people to buy new cars.

An Australian Rally.

Away in Australia there is hope of a rally this year, and, of course, with a country like that they ought to be able to lay out routes which would cause the Monte Carlo Rally

Athens stalwarts to feel a bit faint. The event should finish in Melbourne, it seems, on October 28. Engines, frames, and front axles will be sealed, there will be the usual controls, with a loss of points for late arrival, the usual average speed, and a scoring system giving 100 marks for the first thousand miles, then one-hundredth of a mark for every mile above that distance. Nothing is said at the moment as to the method of sorting out the competitors if a number arrive at the finish with the same total of marks. This, of course, is the bone of contention with every rally, and a problem that has not yet been solved properly. Triumphs, by the way, have had a good success "down under," as Graham Tucker has won the Australian Championship Cup with a Super Seven, the cup being awarded for the greatest number of points in the year's trials and speed contests.—The Autocar.

New All-British Derailleur Bicycle Gear.

One of the most interesting developments in modern bicycle construction is the new "TriVelo" derailleur gear which has been placed on the market by the Triumph Engineering Co., Ltd., of Coventry. It embodies several entirely new features and has the distinct advantage of maintaining perfect chain alignment in all three gears.

and no wasted effort. Perfect chain alignment is achieved by the basic idea underlying its construction, which allows a set of sprockets, on a free-wheel bearing, free to slide laterally on the hub.

Two telescopic springs over the guide pins operate the change from low to high gears while the shift from high to low is positively actuated by control against the spring pressure. The control wire is fitted to the selector fork by means of a soldered nipple inserted in a double hole; the quadrant being clipped to the top tube of the cycle.

Lubrication is another strong feature of the design of the gear. The sliding surfaces are lubricated by means of drilled oilways located between the splines on the hub, oil being thrown out from the main hub body Registering with each in the course of its rotation is a drilled hole forming a lead to the free-wheel bearings.

This variable-speed device has been enthusiastically received by the keen cyclist.

Motor Cycle Engines Many Uses.

We hear of an ingenious Birmingham man who is using a 1912 Triumph motor cycle engine for working a circular saw, and during the last few months it has provided the motive power for cutting up some 50 tons of extremely hard wood, without a single breakdown. Twenty years' use for a motor cycle engine in one form or another is not bad going.

Scissors to Grind.

"Scissors to grind" was a street cry of the peddling cutler of years ago, but an ingenious Yorkshire man, who is no ordinary grinder, has rigged up an old Triumph motor cycle combination, which reveals his inventive mind. To his machine he has attached an apparatus for sharpening lawn mowers in the street, or at people's doors, and the novelty of the outfit creates attention wherever the owner goes. The power for the actual grinding is provided by the Triumph engine, which still does the equivalent of 1,000 miles per week, grinding and road work, although it is a machine of ancient vintage.

The owner of this outfit, who is 70 years of age, is quite at home on his machine, and earns enough money to keep his family of three in comfort.

GAUGING THE MARKET

FORECAST WITHIN TWO PER CENT.

London, Oct. 1.—By making use of the highly efficient Statistical Department of the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders, British manufacturers find it possible to gauge the market with great accuracy. It is claimed that, assuming a fairly normal year, it is possible to forecast within 2 per cent. of the actual figure the number of vehicles on the road at the end of each quarter, when licences are granted.

Analysis" No. 8, the estimate of 1,038,000 was given for the number of private cars in use at the end of May last. The actual total number of vehicles registered, as stated in Monthly Progress Report No. 18 (another S.M.M.T. production), proved to be 1,038,073. Thus the difference between estimation and fact was well within the margin of statistical "toleration."

Similar estimates are available for all classes of vehicles; but from the analysed statistics available it is possible for the prospective trader to obtain an intimate knowledge of the possibilities and peculiarities of the particular district selected, a general or in regard to any special aspect. Complete details are furnished as to the acreage and population of every district in the country, with the respective proportions of urban and rural areas and inhabitants; and the records of motor vehicle registrations in each of these districts are analysed into their respective horse-power classes.

Much valuable data can thus be gathered by study of the statistics, and the element of chance in trading replaced by a reasonable degree of mathematical certainty. All the figures are there for anyone to examine.

MOTOR DIRECTION
INDICATORS

TO BE MADE COMPULSORY?

London, Oct. 2.—The possibility of direction indicators on motors being made compulsory is suggested by an announcement issued by the Ministry of Transport.

"In view of recent developments the Minister has as a matter of urgency asked the Departmental Committee on Traffic Signs, which is at present sitting, to advise him as to whether or not in their view the time has arrived when he should make regulations on the subject of direction indicators, on motor vehicles, and if so as to the form which such regulations should take."

The "Times" Motoring Correspondent writes:
Direction indicators are compulsory on motor vehicles in Germany, but have hitherto received no official recognition in this country, except that they are accepted as a substitute for the hand-signalling laid down in the Highway Code.

There are many kinds of mechanical signals on the market, and an entirely new type is now a standard fitting on the new Morris models.

WARNINGS TO BROADCAST
100 MILESBRITAIN'S WAR ON THE BANDITS

EVEN FASTER CARS

Scotland Yard is linking up all the police forces in London and the Home Counties in an attempt to defeat the car bandit and gunman. No longer (writes a correspondent of The Evening News) is the menace to be fought by the individual forces, in whose area an attack or hold-up takes place.

Numerous secret conferences between Scotland Yard, the Chief Constables of the Home Counties, and Home Office officials decided on a new campaign, the main points of which are:

Greater use of wireless, both in London and the Home Counties;
More fast cars for patrol work;
Organisation of volunteer motor patrols in the Home Counties; and Close co-operation between Scotland Yard and all the Home Counties and borough police forces.

Instead of the Flying Squad being centred at Scotland Yard, each of the 22 divisions is to have a number of Squad cars available both day and night, but the officers are to be in constant touch with the "Yard" as well as with divisional headquarters.

Camouflage.

Hitherto in London a Squad car, containing four detectives, has been readily identified by the bandits.

The fact that four powerfully-built men are riding in a car has also aroused the suspicions of the bandits.

Something entirely new in body-work has been designed. A saloon body, which to all intents and purposes looks like an ordinary body, is being fitted to some of the new and faster cars which the "Yard" have. But the body hides three of the detectives, the back seat being in a recess.

Only the driver is visible to the casual observer, and he appears to be the sole occupant of the car.

Powerful Engines.

The car itself looks like an ordinary touring saloon, capable of not more than about 55 to 60 miles an hour. It is capable of attaining a speed of over 100 miles an hour.

Arrangements are nearing completion for the provision "somewhere near London" of a secret wireless station which will broadcast on a special wavelength all urgent calls to the Flying Squad. Speed in the circulation of information is of the utmost importance. The bandit will have little chance of escaping if within a few minutes of his attack a full description of the man and the car is circulated over an area of one hundred miles or more.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER.

"WASH-A-BIT"

(BY MR. S. OAP OF BATH.)

DEAR KIDDIES.

Last night as I was coming from the office I saw a bunch of Chinese boys who were evidently going home after a hard day's work.

The first thing I noticed was the collection of gloriously dirty necks, grubby ears, and black hands. Oh, no, I wasn't shocked, but the thought came to me, as I walked along, of the scrubbing that would be necessary to get them clean.

All boys hate that "getting clean again" process, and even as they read this some of them will fancy they hear a voice saying, "Go back again and wash behind the ears."

I wonder if they would have been happy if they had lived in the Middle Ages, for then the bath was considered an almost unnecessary absurdity.

I once read that the children of King Edward I. had baths four times a year, and when I started to look up some records I was astonished to read this extract from the rules of the abbot of an English monastery:

"A bath should by no means be refused to a body when compelled thereto by the needs of ill-health. Let it be taken without grumbling when ordered by a physician; so that, even though a brother be unwilling, that which ought to be done for health may be done at the order of him who is set over you. Should he wish for one when not advantageous his desire is not to be gratified."

There is no always, another side to the picture—the Middle Ages were the most unhealthy for children, and through dirt and disease they suffered as never since.

With the arrival of plenty of hot water and soap the two old enemies have, more or less, been conquered. So next time you are told to bath, don't grumble, just trot along with a smile.

Cheerio.

Do you know how to play "Bob Apple"? This old game comes from Scotland. You must have a tub full of water and several apples. Everybody must kneel round the tub and try to catch the apples in their teeth. It is not as easy as you might think.

"CAT BURGLARS"

Two burglars were robbing a safe when suddenly one of them fell over a chair.

"Who's there?" cried a voice from the bedroom.
"Meow, meow," squealed the burglar with great presence of mind. Silence followed, until the other burglar fell over the same chair. Again came the voice from the bedroom, "Who's there?"
"Another cat," exclaimed the second burglar hurriedly.

THE CODE FLAG

BE it assumed that the trading schooner Bermuda Bess wishes to signal by international code the liner Carltonia, at sea.

She hoists her ensign with a pennant, divided vertically red and white, under it, which thus used is called the "code flag," and means she has a signal to make.

Observed by the Carltonia, that vessel in turn hoists a similar pennant to the dip, or about two-thirds of the way up, and in this case it is called the "answering pennant," and means she is all eyes for the signal of the schooner.

The Bermuda Bess then makes a hoist representing the first part of her communication, and keeps it flying until the Carltonia hauls her answering pennant close up, that is to the highest point on the hal-yards, indicating that she understands the hoist of the other ship.

Upon this, the Bermuda Bess lowers that hoist, and the Carltonia brings her answering pennant to the dip again and awaits the next one, the process being repeated until the whole signal is made, and its conclusion marked by the Bermuda Bess lowering her ensign, and, if she has not already done so, her code flag.

who has a beautiful green body, builds her nursery and brings up here family beneath the water. This she does by collecting air bubbles in her wee claws, until they resemble the size of a hazel-nut. Round them she weaves a silk net, made quite waterproof by a sticky liquid which comes from her body. Once completed, she secures it to the stem of a water plant. Here in this sunken cradle her babies are safe. From time to time the mother rises to the surface to renew her air supply, while in winter she stays snugly below, and goes to sleep.

(More about Spiders to-morrow.)

SPIDERS AT THEIR SPINNING

DO YOU think of a spider as an insect? If so, you are quite wrong for spiders are not insects at all, but belong to the same family as scorpions and king crabs. How do they differ from ordinary garden insects? First of all: they have four pairs of legs instead of three, each of which is covered with tiny hairs, and every foot has claws. Then they do not possess wings, and their eyes sometimes number as many as six or eight.

There are many kinds of spiders, all of them interesting, and each possessing his own family habits. Let us take first of all the house spider. He likes to find a snug corner in a warm room, in which to spin a horizontal web. This is very closely woven, and left open at both ends, so that its owner can make a quick escape should the need arise. If you look closely, you will notice that the web is rather dusty, and full of tiny scraps of mortar from the ceiling, and other rubbish. This is not due to accident, but has been collected by the spider purposely to give weight to the web.

The hunting spider is a sturdy little fellow, who does not believe in staying at home to catch his food, but likes to go out and hunt for himself. The mother spider is very careful of her babies, and always hides her tiny cradle in the crack of an old wall, or a crevice in the bark of a tree trunk.

Similar in his habits to the hunting spider is the wolf spider. This spider is able to walk across the surface of a lake, and ever dive below it, if he sees a choice morsel to eat. Being hairy, his body draws minute air bubbles down with it, and with these he breathes until he comes up once more.

No mother could be more attentive than the female wolf spider, who brings up as many as three families in a year. Having spun a cocoon, she carries it beneath her own body while the eggs are hatching. Then, when the babies are about to leave the cocoon, the mother builds a shelter. She chooses a tuft of grass in a dry, warm spot, and then spins a silken dome-shaped roof to cover her family.

Another variety of these clever spinners is the water spider, who is as much at home in water as he is on land. The mother spider, (Contd. at foot of previous column.)

THE LYTTON REPORT

CHINA'S INSTRUCTIONS TO GENEVA DELEGATION

Nanking, Oct. 27.—It is reported that if his health improves sufficiently, Mr. Wang Ching Wei, President of the Executive Yuan, who sailed for Germany last Saturday to seek medical relief, may visit Geneva to confer with the Chinese delegation. The presence of Mr. Wang at Geneva, it is believed, will greatly assist the delegation in its presentation of China's case before the League Council and Assembly.

The Ministry of Foreign Affairs has cabled instructions to the Chinese delegation at Geneva enunciating the National Government's views regarding the Lytton Report. The instructions generally follow the lines laid down in Mr. Wang Ching Wei's farewell message last week.

The delegation is also instructed to point out China's inability to accept those recommendations of the Lytton Commission which are derogatory to China's sovereignty. Counter-proposals are made regarding such domestic matters as ought to be dealt with by China of her own accord. Proposals considered to be consistent with China's sovereignty and territorial integrity are accepted in principle.—Kuo Min.

SINO-BRAZILIAN TREATY

Nanking, Oct. 27.—Formal signing of the Sino-Brazilian Treaty is expected shortly as a result of the recent negotiations between Senhor Velloso, Brazilian Minister to China, and officials of the Foreign Ministry. An agreement has been reached, except for two points regarding which the Brazilian Minister has telegraphed to his Government for instructions. It is understood that the treaty will be based strictly upon the principle of equality and reciprocity for both countries.—Kuo Min.

Redemption is to be made within twenty years in 40 semi-annual instalments; drawings will be held in April and October each year commencing from April, 1933. One of the sources of municipal revenue will be hypothecated as security for the sinking fund.

The loan will be underwritten by a local banking group. Payment of principal and interest will also be undertaken by the banks concerned at a service commission of 2.5 per mille (one-quarter of one per cent.)—Kuo Min.

MA'S TROOPS CLAIM SUCCESSES

GENREAL MA PERSONALLY DIRECTS OPERATIONS

Peiping, Oct. 27.—The Heilungkiang brigades under Major-General Sung Hsi Ho and Hui Hui Ting have launched severe attacks on Lunachan which is strongly guarded by the Japanese, reports a radio message from General Ma Chan Shan, Chairman of the Heilungkiang Provincial Government.

Four Japanese airplanes have been dropping heavy bombs on the Chinese camps outside Lahaichan.

General Ma is personally directing operations. Keshan, on the Taitshih-Keshan Line, has been captured by the units under General Po Ping San while Peianchen has also been taken by those under General Nan Ting Fang. While a strong force has been dispatched to Taitshih, troops have been detailed to hunt for scattered enemy units.

General Su Ping Wen, Commander-in-Chief of the Heilungkiang National Salvation Army, also reports that Kula, Heilungkiang, and Melitza have been taken by the Heilungkiang units. Only 1,000 Japanese soldiers are holding Pulachi which is now surrounded by loyal Heilungkiang troops.

CONDITIONS IN SHANSI

INTERESTING ACCOUNT BY GEN. HSU

Nanking, Oct. 25.—An interesting account of industrial and financial conditions in Shansi was given yesterday by General Hsu Yung Chang, Chairman of the Shansi Provincial Government, who is visiting the Capital.

General Hsu stated that Shansi, which has been devoting its attention to road-construction and has built up a compact system of highways, is now turning to industrial development. For this purpose, a Planning Committee has been organized with General Yen Hsi Shan as Chairman and with a number of experts assisting. The establishment of an industrial bank is also contemplated.

Owing to the ignorance of the people and indifference of the officials, however, the difficulties encountered in connection with the task of developing various domestic enterprises have often been disheartening, he said. Pointing to the fact that owing to high transportation rates competition with foreign coal is out of the question at present. Lack of modern equipment has also impeded the development of native production.

Turning to the financial state of the Provincial Government, General Hsu said that Shansi, like most other provinces, is burdened with the upkeep of huge armies. Aside from native troops, Shansi has to support about 50,000 soldiers from other provinces. This item of expenditure absorbs about 75 per cent. of the monthly revenue of Shansi and Suiyuan which totals $2,000,000. However, it is hoped to balance the budget through the steady reduction of troops, over 10,000 of whom have already been disbanded.—Kuo Min.

INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE NORTH-WEST

Nanking, Oct. 25.—The Executive Yuan yesterday issued an order instructing the Ministries of the Interior, Industry, Communications, Finance and Railways to jointly draft plans for the industrial development of the North-west. It is learnt that a meeting of representatives of these five ministries will be arranged shortly for the purpose.—Kuo Min.

An Auxiliary Capital.

Peiping, Oct. 25.—Discussing plans for the construction of the auxiliary national capital at Sian, Shensi, and their relation to the development of the North-west, Mr. Chang Chi, Chairman of the Preparatory Committee, at the weekly memorial service of the Hopei Provincial Party Headquarters yesterday, explained that Sian will not be made the political, but the economic and cultural centre.

The construction of highways, not buildings, will be the most important task, Mr. Chang declared, as better means of communication are necessary. With the completion of the Shensi-Szechuan and Shensi-Suiyuan Inter-Provincial Highways, he pointed out, Sian will automatically become the economic and cultural centre for the North-west. The development thereafter of Suiyuan, Sinkiang, and other North-western regions will then be greatly facilitated.—Kuo Min.

CIVIL WAR IN SHANTUNG

SPEEDY SETTLEMENT OF SITUATION URGED

Nanking, Oct. 27.—Fundamental principles for a settlement of the situation in eastern Shantung are suggested by the National Anti-Civil War League in telegrams to the National Government, the Military Affairs Commission, the Executive Yuan and the Ministry of War.

In urging a speedy settlement of the situation, the League suggests that while garrison districts of national units must of course be designated by the highest military authority in the Government, military men should not however be allowed to interfere in the civil administration. This, the League points out, should be the basic principle of any settlement of the Shantung situation.

The telegram dwells upon the gravity of the national crisis and points out that any revival of civil war is bound to alienate world sympathy with China in the Sino-Japanese controversy. Domestic disputes of whatever nature must therefore be settled by political means and recourse to warfare must be strictly prohibited.

The telegram laments that fighting still continues in eastern Shantung despite the efforts so far made by the Government. It urges that the Central Government should immediately decide upon appropriate measures and effect an immediate liquidation of the situation in order to uphold its own prestige and dignity.

JAPANESE LAUNCH OFFENSIVE

Peiping, Oct. 27.—According to reports received here, the Japanese on the 21st inst. launched a general offensive on the Chinese Volunteers under Cheng Kui Lin in western Liaoning. On the 23rd, 3,000 of the enemy attacked Cheng Kui Lin's Volunteers between Haingcheng and Suichung. Under the protection of airplanes, the Japanese pushed forward to the Chinese lines but were met with stiff resistance at Tien-shukow, Kauchungtsue, and Erhtackow. Severe fighting raged throughout the day. The Japanese airplanes were useless as the Volunteers took cover in the unharvested kaoliang fields.

The same night, the Chinese emerged, severed the rear of the Japanese at Erhtackow and surrounded the enemy on all sides. Suffering heavy casualties, the Japanese were forced to retreat. The railway tracks between Hsing-cheng and Suichung were damaged by the Chinese.

In order to prevent the further advance of the Volunteers, the Japanese subsequently set fire to the kaoliang and caused a huge conflagration which extended for several miles along the Railway.—Kuo Min.

INVASION OF JEHO

JAPANESE CONTINUE PREPARATIONS

Peiping, Oct. 27.—The Japanese military are continuing their preparations for another invasion of Jehol, according to a telegram from Liu Chen Tung, Volunteer Commander at Kailu, eastern Jehol. A tense situation is reported along the Chinese defence lines at Yuhangpao and Tackeyingtsue.

JAPANESE BOMB TAOTEYINGTSE

PROVINCIAL PETITIONS REJECTED

Nanking, Oct. 27.—Petitions submitted by the Yunnan, Kweichow, and Kansu Provincial Governments for postponement in the creation of Special Commissionerships to supervise the institution of local autonomy, as decided upon by the Ministry of Interior, were rejected yesterday by the Executive Yuan. Instead, a fresh order was issued instructing that preparations should be hastened for the appointment of such officials.

For the realization of district autonomy, the Ministry of Interior recently announced plans whereby special commissioners would be appointed to various provinces to assist the Provincial Governments. The three provinces have petitioned for delay on the plea on financial stringency and inability to shoulder the additional expenditure which would have to be incurred.—Kuo Min.

WUCHOW NOTES

A BANDIT SCARE.

FAILURE OF RICE CROP

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

Wuchow, Oct. 28.

There was a considerable scare last week when a report was received that a strong force of bandits, well-armed with rifles, had appeared on the banks of the river just opposite the city. It was said that they intended to loot the tannery, the dye-works and cloth factory and the oil installations in that district. The police acted at once and a strong detachment of troops was hurried towards the river. Before they landed, however, the bandits had disappeared and there has been no sign of them since.

Students on Strike

A number of students of the higher schools were recently dismissed by the headmaster. As a result all the students went on strike and the school was shut down for the time being. Official notice has been taken of the matter and orders have been given that the students are to return to their desks and obey the lawful authorities.

Floods and the Rice Crops.

Even the older inhabitants of this district cannot remember a year in which the water level has remained high as late in the year. The result is that many paddyfields are still flooded. The first crop at Hsien has failed and the prospect of doing well. The price of rice has risen and the authorities have issued orders prohibiting people from increasing their poultry and livestock, and ordered them to plant more vegetables, particularly

Serious Fire.

A serious fire broke out one night last week at the corner of Taiman Road. When it is said that the conflagration started in a shop dealing in dye, paint and woodoil and that a high wind was blowing, it is easy to imagine the fierceness of the blaze. The fire brigade made quite a satisfactory turnout and fought the flames for two hours before subduing them. The house where the fire started was burnt out. Two men who lived on the second floor lost their lives and the shops on either side were slightly damaged. The fire is said to have been caused by the fusing of an electric wire. The damage, which was covered by insurance, is estimated at $30,000.

Two nights later at midnight another fire broke out, this time in a junk in the river. The junk burnt for nearly an hour and then suddenly sank.

LOCAL STORM WARNINGS

INTERESTING LECTURE BY MR. JEFFRIES

Mr. Jeffries gave an interesting lecture from the local broadcasting studio last night. He said in part:

I have recently been in solemn conference with the Postmaster-General, who as you are all probably aware is the Chairman of the local Broadcasting Committee. He is extremely anxious to do all in his power to increase the enjoyment that should be experienced by all those to whom he issues licenses for receiving sets, and the purpose of our recent discussion was to find a means of making the Weather Reports issued by my Department more intelligible to the increasing number of listeners-in.

The present system of weather reports and storm warnings is probably open to criticism—it is said that nothing perfect exists in this world, and perfection is certainly not claimed for it. The Israelites while in captivity in Egypt were at one time reduced to the necessity of making bricks without straw. I am not versed in the technicalities of brick-making either ancient or modern, but the conclusion is easily drawn that straw being an essential of brick-making, its scarcity or complete absence would hamper the making of bricks very considerably.

In a similar manner the forecaster of weather is handicapped by a scarcity of telegraphic weather reports from the territory around him, in supplying the detailed information that the public would like. For instance, if telegraphic reports from a sufficient number of stations are received only twice per day, it is not exactly possible to supply a weather forecast with any greater frequency than twice per day.

"A Melancholy Fact."

An accurate forecast depends upon an accurate weather map; and an accurate weather map depends upon a large number of telegraphic weather reports. It is a melancholy fact that the very considerable progress of this Colony has not included any very considerable increase in these telegraphic reports, and the reason is not far to seek. Hong Kong is a microscopic place compared with the huge area popularly known as the Far East, and the existence of any weather service whatever is dependent upon the courtesy of neighbouring administrations. This courtesy is now of very long standing and there is no reason to expect a cessation. The associated cable companies merit the gratitude of this community also, as the essential telegrams have been forwarded by them for many years free of charge. It will thus readily be seen that the circumstances do not lend themselves to any appreciable expansion of the service, and the improvements of late years have been chiefly in the direction of acceleration of the telegrams.

It is necessary to enter into this somewhat lengthy and apologetic statement in order to bring stern facts before you. My department is strongly suspected of being in possession of far more information concerning the weather than it actually publishes. If this were really so, such action would be criminal, and I am happy to assure you that it is not the case, and never has been.

The observations from which forecasts are deduced are made at some 50 stations in the Far East at 8 a.m. and 2 p.m. daily. Unfortunately the time taken in transmission makes it impossible to issue the inference and forecast before 10 a.m. and 5 p.m., respectively.

Those are communicated to the Press and the Telegraphic Department with all speed, and also exhibited on various notice boards in Colony. There is no need for me to go into detail as to the success or otherwise of these forecasts—the many critics to whom I now speak have no doubt formed their opinions, and this slight address is only made with any intention of landing them or apologising for them.

Telegraphic Information.

The point upon which I wish to enlarge somewhat is the dissemination of weather information when a storm is indicated as threatening the Colony. My equipment in the way of telegrams is the same whether the Colony is threatened or not, with three notable exceptions which I will refer to later, and in these circumstances weather reports and storm warnings have to be formulated in such a manner as to state the probabilities between the times when sufficient information is available to locate the storm centre with more or less accuracy. I have endeavoured therefore since taking control of this office to indicate in the Daily Weather Report in the most simple language, the position and probable motion of storm centres, and in the local forecast the probable sequence of weather. The position and direction of motion of storm centres is also exhibited by means of signals on Signal Hill and the Godown Company's premises. The storm centre is given in Latitude and Longitude and I am afraid that the symbols convey but little to the man in the street without a reference map, but they are terms with which mariners are especially familiar.

There is a popular impression that these signals are not worth attention until signals of the Local Code are hoisted, and in a sense this is correct. The ordinary individual is not particularly concerned about the position of a storm, unless there is some indication that the disturbance will affect the Colony, and hence his personal comfort and daily avocations. To meet this demand the local signals were introduced, containing a preliminary warning signal, signals denoting the direction from which a gale may be expected, a signal denoting the probable increase of the force of the gale, and finally the typhoon signal accompanied by 3 explosive bombs, which signifies that wind of typhoon force is expected.

Reaction to Signals.

The reaction to these signals varies to a large extent. Godowns and Dockyards take precautions very early. The precautions when taken are frequently unnecessary, if wind of sufficient force does not occur to justify the signal, but it is unfortunately one of the disabilities which large enterprises labour under, that considerable time must be wasted while the lighters and small craft so characteristic of this harbour remain in shelter, and cargo work in at a standstill.

The shipowner or agent on the contrary would probably prefer to see ships dealing with cargo up to the last possible moment, but the case of a well found ship, with steam fully up, is entirely different from that of the small craft. There would appear to be no alternative therefore to a set of rules which require certain things to be done when certain signals are hoisted. If the hoisting of signals proves to be unjustified, there is a loss of time undoubtedly, but that loss is nothing compared to the loss caused by a typhoon, if the local signals were to be ignored.

Tropical storms have certain general characteristics, but individual storms differ widely. If it were possible to publish a timetable of their movements, arrangements for protecting life and property would be greatly simplified, but as this is not possible, the present arrangements should be accepted as the best available, and if time is occasionally lost when gales do not eventuate, the delay should be written off as an insurance against calamity.

So much for shipping and large public enterprises. My hearers will probably feel that the ordinary citizen would like to know a little more, especially as he now possesses a radio set, and sees no reason why the Government should not keep him well informed. I hope that I have made it plain that generally speaking, I am in a position to give definite news twice a day only.

The First Sentinel.

When however, a typhoon makes itself felt at the sentry stations of the Colony, it is usually possible to follow its course more closely. The first sentinel is Pratas Island, and if the storm passes sufficiently near, its future course and probable arrival in the waters of the Colony can be more or less accurately forecast. Pratas is about 180 miles ESE of the Colony, and as many typhoons travel WNW, the weather experienced at Pratas Island will probably occur some 12 to 18 hours later in Hong Kong. The next sentinel is Gap Rock lighthouse which establishes communication with the typhoon as Pratas relinquishes it. The two places mentioned are the greatest safeguards against calamity that the Colony possesses, and it is practically impossible for any storm to affect the Colony without making its existence felt at Pratas Island first. The splendid service which the station has performed since its institution has been invaluable to this Department, and the grateful thanks of the Colony are due to the Government of China for their continued assistance. Gap Rock lighthouse was at one time our most advanced outpost, and time and again has the Royal Observatory been indebted to the staffs at both Gap Rock and Waglan for their whole-hearted co-operation during the strenuous time of a typhoon's passage.

I cannot let this occasion pass without again acknowledging most gratefully the assistance which is afforded by the commanders and officers of the Royal Mercantile Marine. During the past few days I have received as usual invaluable information from several ships, the majority of which were in troubled waters.

To remember the welfare of others during periods of difficulty is one of the traditions of the sea, I believe, but I should like my many helpers to know how much their help is appreciated by the Government and myself.

Staunch Helpers.

Now with the aid of these staunch helpers, I hope to tell you a little more about it, if you are prepared to keep the loudspeaker in action or the earphone handy. The arrangements which the P.M.G., the Chief Electrical Engineer and myself are considering for next year will provide for a series of broadcast-announcements which will be issued at my direction, when I consider that the typhoon has approached near enough to warrant them. When this occurs, special reports will be made usually at 2 hour intervals and at the even hours, say 10 a.m., noon and 2 p.m., and the Chief Electrical Engineer has promised the use of the transmitting set at any time of the day or night for this purpose.

To summarise the arrangements. Ordinary storm warnings giving the position and direction of motion of a disturbance will be forwarded to the Radio Department and broadcast on 600 metres telegraphy and 355 metres telephony immediately. They will be repeated at the two subsequent hours. Special reports will be issued at my discretion by ZBW on 355 metres usually at two hourly intervals at any time of the day or night.

I sincerely hope that you will deem these arrangements satisfactory, and that it will be a long time before I have to put them in operation. In the meantime, it would appear advisable for all those listeners who are interested in storm warnings, to supply themselves with maps of the Far East to which they can readily refer. There are several maps published locally for this specific purpose.

Having brought you thus far on the road, you will perhaps be surprised if I say that all these arrangements are quite unnecessary, if you, my listeners, are willing to incur moderate expense and acquaint yourselves with a few first principles.

I will put the case to you thus: Suppose that the Royal Observatory was cut off from the rest of the world and that no telephonic, telegraphic or other communication was possible. Suppose also that you were in the same position in your houses, with the radio set out of order, the aerial carried away or something of that sort. Suppose further that you had invested in a barograph, which is considerably cheaper than the average radio set. In these circumstances, your position and my own would be identical. I should draw my conclusions from the following principles and I see no reason why you should not do so as well.

Typhoon's First Effect.

The first effect of a typhoon upon Hong Kong is usually a spell of bright and hot weather. As the typhoon approaches the clear sky becomes clouded, and a first rough approximation of the typhoon track may be gathered from the nature of the clouds. If the track is to the south of Hong Kong, the clouds are detached and move from N. or N.E. while the visible blue sky is clear. If the typhoon is heading north of Hong Kong, the sky is more completely covered, the clouds move from N. or N.W. and are less sharply defined owing to haze. The temperature is higher than in the former case.

During the passage of a typhoon south of the Colony, the wind veers from North through East to South; during a passage to the North of the Colony the wind backs from North through West to South. In the former case rainfall is plentiful, in the latter, the rainfall, although plentiful, is sometimes not experienced until the typhoon has gone ashore. In both cases the changes in wind direction are quicker, the nearer the centre of the typhoon passes to the Colony, and in the rare cases when the typhoon passes directly over the Colony, no gradual change of wind direction is discerned, the wind ceasing abruptly as the central calm approaches, recommencing suddenly from the opposite direction as the central calm passes.

The progress of the typhoon may be estimated by observing the fall of the barometer. A gradual fall and recovery signifies that the centre is at a considerable distance, while a sharp decline and recovery indicates its comparative nearness. In the majority of cases the highest wind velocity will be experienced as the barometer begins to rise, and sharp fluctuations will be noticed during the more severe squalls.

Now these principles are not very hard to remember. Test them the next time a typhoon passes close to us, you will probably find it interesting. Thank you for your attention, good night.

CLAIM ON LOCAL FIRM

CHOY SWINDLE ALLEGATIONS

BIG SUMS INVOLVED

Before the Chief Justice (Sir Joseph Kemp) yesterday, the hearing was commenced in a case in which the Chase Bank, formerly the Equitable Eastern Bank, of Queen's Road, claimed the sum of Yen 155,038.75 from the Yau Yau firm, in respect of a bill of exchange for Yen 100,000 drawn upon the Yau Yau firm of Kobe, payable to plaintiffs thirty days after sight.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, instructed by Mr. E. Davidson, of Messrs Hastings, Dennys and Bowley, appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Eldon Potter, R.C., and Mr. F. C. Jenkinson, instructed by Mr. Loschy, of Messrs. Russ and Co., appeared for the defence.

Opening the case, Mr. Sheldon stated that the claim was for yen 155,038.75 on a bill of exchange of which the defendants and a firm Yau Yue, of Kobe, were the drawers. The bill was payable to the plaintiffs thirty days after sight. The bill was duly presented for payment and dishonoured.

For the Defence.

Mr. Potter:—I would not contest that the onus was on defendants in this case although it may be open to me as a matter of law to do so. I would not do so because I am anxious, at the earliest possible moment, to put the defendants' case before you for reasons which will be apparent in my opening. This is not a case in which there is any technical question. It is a clear-cut issue. The real issue between the parties is whether on July 2, 1930, this bill for yen 155,000 was sold or negotiated by the defendants to the Equitable Bank, or whether, as the defendants say, it was handed to the bank for collection. The defendants say, as they have all through the history of the case, that the document was merely handed to the bank for the purpose of collection, and nothing else.

"If the Bank's suggestion that they gave cash for this bill be true, then this case is one of the most deliberate fraud on the part of the defendants, who, having got the money, have tried to avoid paying what they justly should pay. It would involve perjury of the grossest kind. We deny in every respect the suggestion that cash was paid by the Equitable Bank. If our case is untrue, it involves perjury of the most colossal scale, because every document we rely upon—cables, books of accounts, letters and so on—all prove that this bill was handed to the Equitable Bank on July 2 for collection. There is no happy medium.

Result of Fraud.

"We will leave no doubt that this unhappy case is the result of fraud on the bank by the bank's own late comrade, commonly known as Charlie Choy. We will leave no doubt that after the cash was paid for the bill, that cash was paid to Charlie Choy as a result of his ingenious swindling devices. It is almost common knowledge that the Equitable Bank was in effect involved in a very large sum indeed as a result of this particular officer of the bank.

"The defendant firm is a firm which imports and exports and also deals in exchange, a phrase given to me as covering the whole of the activities of the defendant firm. They represent various firms in other parts of China and Japan, and negotiate bills for them, and also finance their transactions. The virtual proprietor of the defendant firm is Mr. T. Teak Ki, the son of Mr. T. Teak, a man well-known in all Chinese circles in Hong Kong, and proprietor of the old-established firm of Yuen Ki Hing, who for over 50 years have transacted Chinese banking and other business in the Colony. Mr. T. Teak Ki is the principal assistant to his father in that firm, as well as being virtual proprietor of the defendant firm. Both father and son have the very highest reputation in Chinese financial circles in Hong Kong. In their dealings with the foreign banks they also enjoy a high reputation.

Exchange Transactions.

"The activities of the defendant firm in the exchange business consisted of negotiating bills for a multiple firm in Tai-pai, Formosa, with branches in Kobe, and Shanghai or handing bills for collection to local banks on behalf of these firms. The defendant firm would draw bills in order to finance these transactions, and they would then get 1 per cent. remuneration on financing transactions."

Mr. Potter outlined the procedure adopted by the head firm when they required a bill negotiated, stating that instructions were given as to whether the bill was to be sold or for collection. This was carried out by the defendant firm. When they drew a bill and presented it at a bank for collection, they informed the customer from whom it may be collected.

Mr. Potter read several letters relating to the business of the defendant firm in negotiation between the bank and firms in Shanghai and Kobe.

Mr. Sheldon:—Statements by the defendant to a third person are not admissible.

Mr. Potter stated that he was only including the letters to show the course of business and that when a bill was given to the Equitable Bank for collection or sale, it was reported by defendant firm to the proper quarters. He contended that that sort of thing inevitably happened in every commercial transaction and therefore their inclusion in the case must have been contemplated. In view of that, he submitted they were admissible evidence. If they were ruled admissible, they would be proved.

His Lordship:—If the course of business is relevant, then it is relevant to say that bills were sometimes handed in for collection. I should have thought correspondence of this kind would be admissible.

Mr. Potter referred to several of the letters and stated that in every case the transactions referred to were put through by the bank's comrade, Charlie Choy. That man had considerable personality and had to a great extent the capacity of inducing people to trust him. So much was this the case that the manager of the Bank trusted him implicitly, and, as a result of that trust, he had defrauded the Bank of sums of money which he would estimate ran into millions.

Mr. To Swindled.

The Equitable Bank was not the only institution Choy had defrauded. Even Mr. To, a personal friend of Choy, had paid the penalty of misplaced confidence. He had guaranteed Choy with $20,000 and had loaned him $5,000 and some shares to help him over a difficult settlement. Everything had gone.

The procedure at the Bank when a bill was negotiated was that Mr. To would go to the Equitable Bank, where he would see Charlie Choy. A rate was arranged and if that was acceptable, and if the comrade department of the Bank was prepared to negotiate the bill, Mr. To would return to the Bank later, when he would be presented with a document in English. Mr. To could not read English, but it was obvious to him that the document was a bill of exchange, and he would understand. He would then put his chop on the back of the document, and get from the comrade department cash and a Chinese document chopped with the correspondent's chop of the comrade department, showing the commission which the comrade received, stamp duty telegraphic charges, etc.

Coming to the bill for Yen 155,000, Mr. Potter, after producing a number of documents to the Court, said that there could be no doubt from these documents that the bill was given to the bank for collection and was not sold to the bank. Mr. Potter related the circumstances under which the bill came to be handed to the bank for collection and he also produced letters and telegrams written by the Yau Yau firm in Hong Kong to the Yau Yau firm in Kobe in which mention was made that the bill had been handed to the bank for collection.

Mr. Potter submitted that in view of the documents produced, if the bill in question had not been handed to the bank for collection, then his client must be guilty of perjury, fraud and forgery in a way which, happily they had never come across in that Court.

The hearing was then adjourned.

H.E.'S A.D.C. MARRIED

WEDDING OF MISS ENID ELLIOT-HEYWOOD AND CAPTAIN FRANCIS W. WEBB, R.A.

RECEPTION AT GOVERNMENT HOUSE

The first outstanding social event of the 1932 season, was the wedding yesterday of Miss Enid Elliot-Heywood and Captain Francis W. Webb, R.A.

Captain Webb is A.D.C. to His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government, and by the kindness of H.E. and Mrs. Southern the reception after the wedding was held at Government House.

Every detail of wedding and reception had been carefully thought out, and, quite apart from its special significance to them as the beginning of their joint lives, the day will be remembered in the minds of Captain and Mrs. Webb as a particularly delightful one—certainly their wedding will be remembered by the guests as one of the happiest and most charming at which they had been present.

His Excellency, in proposing the health of the bride and groom, mentioned the fact that "Francis" (Captain Webb) was the second of their A.D.C.'s to be married from Government House; the great success of the first venture of the sort made him and Mrs. Southern confident that equal happiness would attend this second wedding.

Mrs. Southern wore a dress and short cape carried out in royal blue crepe satin trimmed with old English grey crepe de chine. A Camel model from Mme. Garnett with a hat in grey straw trimmed to match.

THE SERVICE

The wedding service, conducted by Dean Swann, assisted by the Rev. W. Walton Rogers, was held in St. John's Cathedral, which had been prettily decorated for the occasion with yellow and white flowers, and was fully choral. A very large number of friends were present.

THE BRIDAL GOWN

The bride who was given away by her father, Capt. C. E. Elliot-Heywood, looked charming in a most effective gown of ivory chenille bridal velvet, a Worth model admirably carried out by Eunice. The moderate décolleté cowl front, the back moulded smoothly to the nape of the neck and caught together with a ring of orange blossom, was a charming and unusual effect. Her train was of chiffon embroidered with silver roses and trimmed with tiny rings of orange blossom. A beautiful veil of finest hand embroidered Brussels net was secured by a coronet of orange blossom. As her sole ornament the bride wore a diamond and crystal spray, the gift of the bridegroom's mother. Her bouquet of white orchids was given her by Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bagram.

THE BRIDESMAIDS

The bridesmaids were Miss Helen Boyd, and four children, Judy Fernin, Dorothea Raikes, Margaret Sayer and Elined Raikes. They made a very pretty picture in their apple green frocks cut in Victorian mode with three tiered shoulder capes. On their heads they had wreaths of yellow flowers. Miss Boyd carried a sheaf of yellow gladioli, while the four little girls had gold baskets filled with yellow flower petals.

The Bride's Mother.

The bride's mother was most becomingly gowned in eau de nil georgette trimmed with chantilly lace, and a hat to match trimmed with beau d'ange ribbon in three shades. She carried a spray of white orchids.

The newly-married couple passed out of the Cathedral under an arch of swords held by brother officers of the groom, and their car was drawn by men of the H.K. & Singapore Brigade to Government House where the reception was held.

THE CAKE

After the numerous guests had been welcomed by H.E. and Mrs. Southern and had congratulated the happy couple a sit-down tea was served in the ball room. While this was in process various wedding groups were taken on the lawn. Later the bride and groom reappeared in the ball room for the ceremony of cutting the cake, in true military fashion with Captain Webb's sword, which his bride seemed to manage with unusual skill despite her petite stature.

The cake deserves special mention. It was in five tiers and decorated with the badges of the Royal Regiment of Artillery, and the 22nd (Cheshire) Regiment. The lowest tier was garlanded by sugar models of a South African ox wagon and oxen, and the topmost crowned with an orange tree, symbolizing the Orange Free State of South Africa, the home of the bride.

TO THE BRIDE AND GROOM

His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government proposed the health of bride and bridegroom in a witty speech which called forth a good deal of laughter.

The bride, he said, had the joy which a good many Hong Kong brides had to forego, of having her parents with her. He was sorry that Captain Webb's parents could not also have been present. However he and Mrs. Southern considered themselves Francis' foster parents. (Applause.) He hoped that Francis' experience in running Government House would help him to be of very great assistance to his wife in future years. Captain Webb was the second A.D.C. to be married from Government House.

His and Mrs. Southern's great success in the first affair of the sort that they sponsored made them confident of the success of this wedding of a second A.D.C. Francis met his bride among the snows of Switzerland, and probably both were attracted to the other on account of the adorable costumes worn by sisters. But cruel fate intervened in their happiness. No sooner had they got engaged than Francis was sent to Hong Kong. He felt sure that some sentimental sergeant-major went to the War Office and told the powers there how they were interrupting loves, young dream. He could imagine, as the tale was told, the tears of the typists and the swearing of majors—at all events the result was that Captain Elliot-Heywood was sent to Hong Kong. He was sure that the War Office would be gratified to hear the result of their kindness on this enabling two loving hearts to be reunited. During the six months he had known Enid and Francis he could say that he had never seen more devoted lovers, and he was sure that their married life would be full of happiness.

THE REPLY

Captain Webb thanked His Excellency and Mrs. Southern on behalf of his wife and himself for all their kindness to them both. They were very happy to see all their friends around them and wished to thank them for their congratulations. He and his wife owed a great debt of gratitude to H.E. and Mrs. Southern who had been kindness itself ever since he had known them. He wished to propose the health of the bridesmaids and hoped that one day not far distant, one of them at least, would be standing where his wife stood to-day.

Health of the Bridesmaids.

Captain D. R. M. Cameron, the "best man," proposed the health of the little bridesmaids. "He felt sure, he said, that he could manage the four of them considerably better than their mothers, while he wished to state that the eldest bridesmaid and he had behaved very well indeed. (Laughter and applause.)

THE GIFTS

A magnificent display of wedding gifts was laid out in one of the ground floor rooms, but so great and so eager was the crowd of admirers that our representative was not able to do more than gather (Continued at foot of next column.)

OBITUARY

OLD RESIDENT PASSES AWAY

MR. JOHN OSBORNE

It is with regret that we have to announce the death of Mr. John Osborne which occurred at the Government Civil Hospital on Sunday. Deceased, who was 74 years of age at the time of his death, was one of the oldest residents in the Colony, having been here for about 50 years. He first came out as a private in the Royal West Kent Regiment (The Buffs), and later joined the staff of the Royal Naval Yard police. He worked there for several years after which he joined the Peak Tramways where he worked for about thirty years until his retirement about ten years ago. Deceased leaves three sons, Mr. John Osborne, who recently retired from the post of Assistant Superintendent of the Money Order Office, Mr. A. R. Osborne of the Taikoo Dockyard and Mr. P. W. The late Mr. Osborne was taken ill about two weeks ago with diabetes, and although he had been here for such a long time, had never been back to England.

EX-ACTIVE SERVICE MEN'S DINNER

ARRANGEMENTS FOR ARMISTICE DAY.

We are informed that the arrangements are now almost complete for the dinner and smoker which is to be held by Ex-Active Service Men at the Peninsula Hotel on Armistice night.

A fairly large muster is expected, an extension until 1 a.m. has been recommended and everything points to a very pleasant evening.

The decorations are in the capable hands of Mr. Tattersall, R.N., who has had a great deal of experience in such matters, and a capital concert programme is being arranged. There will be no speeches and the only toast, apart from the usual loyal one to be honoured, is to be "Our fallen comrades."

No official guests are being invited. Any balance after the necessary expenses have been defrayed will be divided equally between Earl Haig's Poppy Day Fund and St. Dunstan's Home for the Blind.

We have been requested to ask all those who propose to attend, provided they have not already done so, to send in their applications for tickets as soon as possible, as it may be necessary to close the list at an early date, of which however due notice will appear in the Press.

Congratulations from Abroad.

The young couple received cables of congratulation from South Africa, England, Scotland and Japan.

A cable of congratulation was also received from the 1st Battalion, the Cheshires Regiment, now in India, the old regiment of the father of the bride.

LORD METHUEN

THE death of Field-Marshal Lord METHUEN at the great age of eighty-seven breaks an interesting link in British military history. Lord METHUEN was born in 1845, when the Duke of Wellington was still a spry veteran, and it would be interesting to know whether as a small boy he ever saw or spoke to NAPOLEON's conqueror. If he did he must have been nearly the last living soldier to experience that honour. It was in 1861, as a young man from Eton, that Lord METHUEN joined the Scots Guards. The Crimean War was, therefore, far closer than is the Great War to-day.

Crimean and Mutiny veterans still dominated the Army, and the Iron Duke's memory was green. Lord METHUEN was a typical Victorian soldier, who learnt his profession in the "Little Wars" that extended and consolidated our Empire, and was finally tested in the Boer War, at end of the century. The Gold Coast campaign of 1873 and the Ashanti War of 1874 gave METHUEN his baptism of fire. Later he took part in the Egyptian war of 1882 and was at the hard-fought battle of Tel-el-Kebir where the famous admiral, Sir Arthur Wilson, then a post-captain, won the Victoria Cross by rallying a broken square and fighting a group of Derwishes, first with his sword, and when that broke, with his bare fists.

It was, however, in the Boer War that METHUEN's name figured prominently. A brave and energetic soldier, well versed in native warfare, he found himself as a divisional general against an able and determined foe. At the sharp battle of Modder River he gained a typical "success," characteristic of the war, and of the kind that saw him no nearer Kimberley, his objective. The enemy inflicted serious losses and then escaped, leaving METHUEN's forces in possession of a useless position and too exhausted to carry on the pursuit. But METHUEN was one of the men who were able to grasp the situation and to modify his methods. He was employed to the end, and if the War brought less fame to him than to ROBERTS and KITCHENER, BADEN POWELL, PLUMER and FRENCH, at least it confirmed his reputation as a capable and useful soldier. As CONAN DOYLE says in The Great Boer War of the final stages of the struggle, "If in the early phases of the war the Boers had given PAUL METHUEN some evil hours, he certainly got his own back again."

Lord METHUEN's last command was Malta, from 1915 to 1919, a post of no small importance while the Gallipoli campaign was in progress. He was then in the seventies and beyond the age for service in the field.

Few men can see greater changes in their profession than Lord METHUEN, for it must be remembered that he lived to see the modern developments of aerial and mechanised warfare, that were still in their beginnings when the Armistice was signed. A wide stretch from the parade uniforms and "muzzle-loading" weapons of the sixties to the tanks and the aeroplanes of to-day! There are some men, like Admiral FISHER, who revel in change, and are never more happy than when turning cherished traditions upside down. There are others, like WELLINGTON who dislike and resist innovation. Lord METHUEN evidently inclined, though not violently, to Lord FISHER's view. While laying no claim to the qualities of a great general, Lord METHUEN was of the finest type of British officer, brave and chivalrous, careful and painstaking—one of the men who, because they are found in plenty in our land—have made our Empire and our traditions possible.

London's Birth-Rate.

The report of the County Medical Officer of Health to the London County Council for 1931 shows a birth-rate of 15 per 1,000, against 15.8 in 1930. This is the lowest birth-rate recorded in London. There were 5,292 fewer births last year than in 1918, when the influence of the War was at its height.

"Make British Best."

Lord Leverhulme, speaking at the inaugural luncheon at the 36th International Grocers' and Provision Dealers' Exhibition at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, said that he approved the slogan "Buy British," but suggested that perhaps a better motto would be "Make British Best." If British manufacturers saw to it that British goods remained the best, then the rest would follow automatically.

Princess Margaret.

We are to have a miniature biography of Princess Margaret, as, a year or two ago, we had one of her sister, Princess Elizabeth. It will, in fact, be an addition to a new edition which Sir John Murray is bringing out of "The Story of Princess Elizabeth."

This most popular volume was written, with authority, by Miss Anne Ring, a member of the household of the Duke and Duchess of York.

Now there is more to say as a double happy study of childhood for there are stories of Princess Margaret, young as she is.

Christabel the Prophetess.

All the signs which it was prophesied would herald the second coming of Christ can be discerned in present world conditions. So said Miss Christabel Pankhurst, the Evangelist and former Suffragette, addressing the Fundamentalist Baptist Conference at Atlantic City.

Governments tottering throughout the world, mankind obsessed by fear, the prospect that Jewish nation may be re-established in Palestine, chaos everywhere—these are the signs, said Miss Pankhurst.

One case of diphtheria was reported over the week-end.

The quarantine restrictions imposed by Formosa and Indo-China against arrivals from Hong Kong on account of cholera have been removed.

Mr. M. J. van Shreve, who has been Vice Consul for the Netherlands in Hong Kong since 1930, left yesterday for Bangkok, where he will be Chargé d'Affaires.

A Chinese woman was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital during the week-end, the victim of a motor accident in Queen's Road West, when she received body injuries resulting from being knocked down by a P.W.D. lorry.

His many friends will regret to hear that as the result of a motor mishap near his residence, Dr. Bruno Hahn, Consul-General for Germany, crushed his leg rather badly on Sunday night. He is at present confined to his bed and will probably be absent from the consulate for some days.

On a charge of being in possession of 1,000 heroin pills on the waterfront, a Chinese who appeared before Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court yesterday was fined $250 with the alternative of three months' hard labour in default. The defendant gave the excuse that he was trying to rid himself of the opium habit by taking heroin pills.

On account of the great difficulty experienced in keeping the red "no parking" kerb signs in reasonably good condition, although many different kinds of paint have been tried, the Shanghai Municipal Council has authorised the substitution of black and white glazed tiles for red paint to mark the places where vehicles are not permitted to stop or park. Experimenters have been made with glazed tiles, and it is considered that black and white will be a more conspicuous marking than any other combination of colour.

She added that she would not fix a date, "whether it is to be next year or in the next hundred years."

A Tale of Old Wars.

A Frenchman who held a fort for the British for 30 years is commemorated by a memorial which has been unveiled at Annapolis Royal in Nova Scotia.

Two hundred years ago Jean Paul Mascarene, a Huguenot Frenchman, showed a hundred British soldiers and several hundred farmers how to raise earthworks and strengthen the walls of the fort at Annapolis Royal against attacks by the French from Louisbourg.

For thirty years, until Canada finally became British by the treaty of Paris which ended the Seven Years War in 1763, Mascarene held the fort for the British.

New Laws for Bridge.

The date for publication of the new code of laws for Auction and Contract Bridge has now been definitely arranged for November 1.

The code is the result of agreement, after long negotiations, between the Portland Club, London, the Whist Club of New York, and the Commission Française du Bridge de Paris. It is in fact an international code of laws which is likely to be accepted by all club players in all parts of the world, and the acting committees of the clubs and the Commission Française are to be congratulated upon bringing to a successful issue so important a project. It is a significant event in the history of cards.

Gold Hoarding in U.S.

For the first time since March the Federal Reserve reports a substantial decrease in gold hoarding. It estimates that about $85,000,000 (approximately $17,000,000 at par) was returned to credit channels between July 6 and August 31, and this roughly reflects the "recent subsidence of banking disturbances and increased activity of the securities and commodity market."

It also reported that the world's monetary gold reserves have increased by $1,800,000,000 ($300,000,000) or approximately 30 per cent.

Described as a menace to seamen going ashore from their ships, a Shanghai Chinese ex-fireman was sentenced to four months' hard labour by Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court yesterday on a charge of assaulting a compatriot.

Kowloon Island Lot No. 3048, situated at Prince Edward Road, was sold at the Crown Land Office yesterday to Mr. Hui Ka Cheung, c/o Mr. A. J. Lane, the well-known architect, at the upset price of $12,263. The land has an area of about 16,350 square feet and its annual rental is $188.

Admitting stealing scrap iron from the Taiyo Maru, lying at the Taikeo Dockyard, an odd job boy was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour by Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court yesterday. Inspector G. A. Stimson said defendant created a scene by knocking his head on the ground when arrested.

Outlining the circumstances of a charge of assault brought against a youth of Aberdeen, Acting Sub-Inspector R. Cunningham told Mr. Schofield at the Central Police Court yesterday that complainant, a fisherman of the district, had tried to pick up a ten-cent piece which the defendant's master had dropped. A crowd of jokers chased complainant, who ran up the stairs of a house. One of the pursuers pulled his leg and he fell down, causing injuries to his back and legs. Defendant, a youth of sixteen, was cautioned while the bail of $15 of a second man arrested was retained.

A police notification requesting pedestrians to walk at the sides of the road and to keep children and infirm or blind or deaf persons out of the carriage way would be useful. ## CHINA ASSOCIATES CORPORATION, LTD.

FAREWELL DINNER TO MR. CHEN

A farewell dinner to Mr. R. W. K. Chen was given by the Board of the China Associates Corporation, Ltd., last night at the Hong Kong Hotel.

Mr. Chen has been visiting China during the past weeks, during which period he has been the guest of various Chinese official and commercial bodies at Shanghai, Nanking and Canton. Whilst at Nanking the Chinese Government commissioned him to fulfil an important mission to Australia.

At the dinner given in his honour, the Chairman Mr. A. Aug-chen stated that it was the desire of his organisation to develop international trade on a reciprocity basis and a practical solution has been arrived at since the visit of Mr. Chen. The Board of Directors was keenly alert to force trade and there would be no lack of co-operation.

The toast of "Our Guest" was proposed by Mr. Chan Cheuk Yin, L.L.D., a director in China Associates Corporation, Ltd., and Luk Hoi Tong Banking Co., Ltd., Mr. Chan said he had been associated with Mr. R. W. K. Chen for the past twenty-two years in Chinese official and Academic circles. The many references made and tributes paid to Mr. Chen by him would evince particular interest in their former colleagues present and prove interesting to other guests.

Mr. Chen's Reply.

The Guest of Honour in response thanked the Board of Directors for the honour they had conferred upon him on the eve of his departure for Australia and assured them of his wholehearted co-operation with the company's interest abroad; he was particularly indebted to Mr. Aug-chen for his untiring efforts towards making his trip a successful one. The toast of the Guest of Honour by his old friend and colleague moved him and his mention of enterprise and progress recalled a remark passed by himself some twenty years ago to Mr. Chan concerning the impossibility of moving Kowloon's hills with hand labour, but on his return to China found open uninhabited spaces giving way to new modern buildings and thoroughfares a remarkable achievement and a tribute to the Colonial Government's administration, which could be accepted as a model example to much of the unknown Great East beyond.

Probably this also inspired Mr. Chan's retirement from the post of Departmental Chief of the Ministry of Industry, Labour and Commerce under the present President of China, Li Shien, when the latter was at Canton, and his concentration on the development of the Luk Hoi Tong Bank, Insurance and Hotels Companies, which has many millions of dollars invested in this Colony, one of its properties being the well known Queen's Theatre. Concluding Mr. Chen said he would leave with the goodwill of the Chinese Government and convey its international felicitations to the people of Australia.

The Chairman then presented the Guest of Honour with a silver cup as a token of goodwill from the Board of Directors. Among the guests present were: Messrs. Barrett, Ainslie, I. N. Chau, S. M. Churn, Y. C. Lau, Y. P. Lo, Li Bing Koon, D. M. Maynard, Ma Luk, Thompson and Wong Heek Son.

Mesdames Aug-chen, Barrett, Chau, Chan, Y. C. Chan, Lo, Maynard, Thompson and Wong.

Misses Churn, Chung Chi Nam, Chung Wai Lum, Goocy, and Wong.

BOGUS INSPECTOR

POLICE INVESTIGATING ON MAINLAND.

Following reports to the effect that a foreigner, posing as an Inspector of factories has been going round factories on the mainland demanding "squeeze" the police have investigated into the matter and are led to the conviction that the man who is responsible is a Portuguese, of short and thin build, but with an elegant appearance with his hair well combed and a neat suit of grey serge. The man is alleged to have gone around with a Chinese interpreter through whom he had spoken to his victims.

One of his victims, Lau Wai Kuen, manager of the Yuet Yee Tang Knitting Factory at Mongkok, who was induced to part with money, describes him as of singularly youthful appearance, certainly not more than 25 years old. The area of Mongkok where are situated a large number of factories, has been the "Inspector's" field of exploitation within the past few days, but it seems that not many have been imposed upon.

The police have the matter under close investigation.

Looking Back 25 Years.

It is to be hoped that the new departmental arrangement, which it was sometime back announced, is to be made at the Colonial Office, placing the self-governing Colonies and the Crown Colonies under separate departments, may have the effect of somewhat improving the manner in which the transfer of governors from one Colony to another is decided upon. Hitherto it has been a complete mystery to outsiders how such transfers are regulated. Indeed so far as can be seen, no principle whatever has been gone upon—or at least none in which the interests of the Colonies or the Empire as a whole are the main consideration. Certainly there has hitherto been nothing to make it appear that such appointments have been regulated by any estimate of the special fitness of a given governor for a given post, that he may have acquired through his experience in the governorship which he is relinquishing. (Hong Kong Daily Press, November 1, 1907.)

Looking Back 50 Years.

I observe that jinrikisha coolies are fined very heavily for running over persons. In view of the aimless, idiotic kind of way in which Chinese saunter about all over the thoroughfare I think this must be just. If I remember rightly, the law gives seven miles an hour as the lawful rate of progress for wheeled vehicles; and in justice to these poor, persecuted, but it cannot be denied useful, jinrikisha coolies, some effort should be made to get the natives either to walk on the footpath or side of the road, or else to run the risk of being run over and themselves bear the consequences. COTTON SPINNING
AT STANDSTILL10,000 WORKERS IDLE IN ROCHDALE

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Oct. 31. COTTON spinning is practically at a standstill in the most important districts in Lancashire in consequence of the strike of operatives over the proposed wage reduction.

Nearly 10,000 are idle in Rochdale and between 10 and 20 mills are affected.

The workers went to the mills as usual, but on ascertaining the new rates operating returned home.

Stoppage is almost complete in the Bolton area, where there are 230 mills employing 18,000 workers.

It is expected that many mills will continue for some time as they are carrying large stocks of yarn.

The Bolton mills are mainly engaged in specialities.

OBITUARY

LORD METHUEN

LONDON, Oct. 30. LORD METHUEN, British Field Marshal, died today.

[Paul Sanford Methuen, British Field Marshal and 3rd Baron Methuen, was born at Nynehead in 1845, and educated at Eton. At 19 he received a commission in the Scots Guards and in 1873 was sent to the Gold Coast on special service, taking part in the expedition under Wolseley against the Ashantis. Promoted Brigadier-General of the Guards, he was Assistant Military Secretary to the Commander-in-Chief in Ireland in 1877 and then for four years Military Attaché in Berlin. Thence he went to Egypt, in connection with Arabi Pasha's rebellion, being present at the battles of Kassassin and Tel-el-Kebir and being made Commandant of Headquarters.]

He next took part in Sir Charles Warren's expedition of 1894 into Beersheba where he raised and commanded the mounted force known as Methuen's Horse and received the C.M.G. for his services. Returning to England he was promoted Major-General in 1896 and succeeded his father in the peerage next year. After commanding the Home District from 1892 to 1897 Methuen went to India as Press censor during the Tirah operations and was knighted (K.C.V.O.).

In the South African war he was given the command of the 1st Infantry Division and assigned the task of advancing to the relief of Kimberley which was besieged by the Boers. Methuen's attacks at Belmont and Elands River were successful and the Kimberley garrison he drove the Boers back. Later he was wounded and captured, but was generously released by General de la Rey.

At the end of the war he was awarded the G.C.B. and given the Eastern Home Command. Appointed Governor of Natal in 1909, he was made Field Marshal in 1911. During the world war Methuen was Governor and Commander-in-Chief at Malta and in 1920 was made Governor and Constable of the Tower of London.]

BUDGET CRISIS IN JAPAN

EXPENDITURE DOUBLE THAT OF RECEIPTS

Tokyo, Oct. 2.—Issuance of bonds, rather than an increase in taxes, is favoured by Mr. Korekiji Takahashi, the Finance Minister, as a means of balancing the budget, he told the United Press in an interview today.

The 1933 budget, the Finance Minister revealed, is expected to exceed ¥2,400,000,000 after all estimates submitted by the various ministries have been approved, whereas the Government cannot anticipate a revenue of more than ¥1,200,000,000 from present taxes.

In view of this huge deficit, some Government circles have been urging that drastic measures be made in the tax levies, which they claim would prevent an increase in bond-

SCHEME TO EASE
UNEMPLOYMENTTO BE DISCUSSED AT GENEVA

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

GENEVA, Oct. 31. AN international programme of public works to ease unemployment will be considered at the World Conference, the Preparatory Committee of which started work drafting the agenda this morning.

It will hold a few plenaries, then will split up into sub-committees to deal with the monetary credit policy, exchange difficulties, price levels and the movement of capital.

Mr. Leonardus, president of the Netherlands Bank, has been elected chairman of the Preparatory Committee.

DARING HARBIN
KIDNAPPINGYOUNG RUSSIAN SNATCHED
OUTSIDE SYNAGOGUEGANG OF FOREIGNERS
AT WORK

HARBIN, Oct. 30.—The kidnapping of young Sherell de Florance last night is one of the most daring acts in this line that have yet been seen in Harbin.

Mr. Sherell de Florance is one of the best-known Jewish merchants in the town, having for many years been the proprietor of the Asiatic Transport Company and owning large property. Lately he had received several threatening letters, demanding money, and in consequence of these, he went to Dairen and Tientsin about a fortnight ago, taking with him his elder son, a young man of 20 years of age, who is his general manager.

This son came back to Harbin a few days ago to look after the business and to be at home for the Jewish annual holidays. On Sunday afternoon, like all other devout Jews, he went to the synagogue and on the conclusion of the service at 7.30 p.m., came out into the vestibule to talk with his friends. Knowing that he was always in danger of being kidnapped, he asked three young men to walk home with him, to which they agreed. A large crowd was coming out of the synagogue wending their way to their homes, the four youths crossing the street to walk down towards Kitaiskaya street, but before they had gone 50 yards, a man in a black mask stepped up to young Sherell and said "Stop."

Hurled into Car.

One of his friends pushed him aside to the wall, while another jumped at the man, but instantly two other masked men appeared, one firing a shot from a revolver, hurled young Sherell into a waiting car and drove off at full speed. The whole of the affair was carried out with such speed that the crowd were for a moment stunned, not realising exactly what had happened, but some person rushed to the police patrol which was passing along the street within a few yards of the spot, hastily explaining the matter.

By this time, the car was out of sight and all the police could do was to report the kidnapping to all parts of the town by telephone. The number of the car was distinctly seen but turned out to be forged, as the actual owner of this number was at home with his car at the time. The kidnappers were all Russians, the chauffeur being of the same nationality, but a Chinese was seen sitting in the car, evidently one of the leaders of the gang.

From enquiries it turned out that the car had been waiting all the afternoon and went to the other synagogue, where the bandits learned that their victim had gone to the old instead of the new synagogue.

od indebtedness. It is impossible, however, to revise taxation schedules sufficiently to cover the deficit, Mr. Takahashi told the United Press.

"The only means by which we can raise the required funds is by the issuance of further bonds," he said.

Departmental heads apparently are showing a reluctance to effect economies, although the financial situation is so serious.

Admiral K. Okada, Minister of the Navy, called upon the Finance Minister yesterday afternoon, it was disclosed, and made a vigorous demand that the naval estimates be approved in their entirety as submitted, insisting that any reductions would endanger national defence.

UNEMPLOYED RIOT
IN LONDONPOLICE FORCED TO CHARGE
CROWD

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Oct. 30. SHARP scuffles occurred between police and unemployed demonstrators in Trafalgar Square today. Numbers were injured and taken into custody.

The trouble commenced with a wrecking campaign by a party of hooligans. They started to break the windows of a nearby shop and then held up a motor-car endeavouring to make progress through the throng.

The driver was in a serious plight. He was forced to desert the car and efforts were made to overturn it without success.

When it was observed that the situation was rapidly getting out of the control of the police acting in isolated incidents, a police baton charge was ordered and the mob was quickly dispersed, though not until several of the police and the rioters had received minor injuries and many of the ring-leaders of the disturbances had been arrested.

The disorders were the outcome of a large political meeting which was addressed by the unemployed, but the majority of the demonstrators had dispersed in an orderly manner immediately after the meeting. The disturbances were caused by hooligans who remained behind looking for trouble.

REICH CONTROL

PROPOSALS

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

BERLIN, Oct. 30. THE constitutional struggle between the State Ministers of Prussia and the von Papen Government having been overcome by a compromise agreement, the political fusion of the Reich and Prussia will be accomplished to-morrow.

An official announcement will be made defining the proposals for the fusion and making various appointments in consequence thereof.

Herr Bracht and Herr Popitz, Reich Ministers without portfolio, will take over the Prussian Ministries of the Interior and Finance, respectively.

Herr Braun, the Reich Minister of Food, will be entrusted with the Prussian Ministry of Agriculture.

Yesterday, the new "Iron" Chancellor, Captain Franz von Papen, issued a decree abolishing the Prussian Ministry of Welfare as well as various departments of which will be taken over by Ministers of the Reich.

EMILIO SCALA RUNS AWAY

FORTUNE BRINGS MISERY

PLENTY, BUT NO PEACE

Life has become a burden, an intolerant burden, for Mr. Emilio Scala.

Once he was a happy Battersea coffee-house proprietor, but he won a fortune by drawing a ticket for Grakle in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstake last year, and has ever since been living in dread of the begging letters the postman brings.

He has received letters from all over the country. It seems that every professional beggar, every gold-brick merchant, every one with a pet scheme for getting rich quickly, and every one with a hard-luck story has discovered his address and sent him an S.O.S.

Lately, a shower of abusive and even threatening epistles have helped to swell his mail.

And now Mr. Scala, the once gay and light-hearted Italian, with the care-free face and expansive smile, has become a man of gloom and has fled from his tormentors. With his wife and four children he has left his imposing "sweepstake" turret at Honor Oak, and disappeared.

Nobody, not even his relatives in London, or the two servants he left in charge of his home, knows where he is or when he is likely to return.

He telephoned to his brother-in-law in London and told him he was going away.

"Pietro, I can't stand it any longer," he said.

CONTRACT BRIDGE
CHANGESNEW RULES NOW IN FORCE

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Oct. 31. STRIKING changes in the rules of Contract bridge, more particularly affecting the scoring have been introduced as the outcome of an agreement between the premier card-playing bodies, the Portland Club, London, the Whist Club, New York, and the Commission Française du Bridge, after three months' discussion. There are five features:

(1) Odd tricks and no-trumps have alternate values of 20 and 40.

(2) The bonus for making a doubled contract is abolished.

(3) Various changes in under-trick penalties.

(4) Overtrick premium are undoubling, undoubled, trick value, doubled 100, vulnerable undoubled 100, grand 200, small 100, grand 300, doubled 750, grand 1,500, doubled 2,250. "Slam" premiums both small and grand slams scored if bid.

Other important alterations are that an ace is the highest in drawing, while a card touched in an exposed hand must be played.

There are numerous alterations made in the rules in the procedure of penalties.

longer," he said.

"Terrible" Letters.

"These letters are terrible. Every day the postman brings me a bigger pile. I am 'fed up' opening letters from people asking me for money, for subscriptions for charities, telling me how to make money, how to invest it, or how I ought to spend it.

"I am going away from England—I don't know where—to get away from those letters. Just keep an eye on the house, and one of these days you will hear from me."

That same day, Pietro, the brother-in-law, told a Daily Express representative that Emilio and his wife and children had gone. "I don't know where they are or when, if ever, they will return. It is quite possible that Emilio will decide to settle down in Italy."

"He left everything at the house just as it was. Gardeners were at work and carpenters making alterations inside the house. The servants told me Emilio just packed a few suitcases, said he was going away, and left. That is all I know."

"We have had no word from him, not even a postcard to say he had arrived anywhere. I expect he has gone to Italy, but he may have gone to America for all I know."

Secret Mark.

"Those letters just made him mad. He could not stand it any more. When they first arrived he tried to answer them; but they came, more and more every day, so that he used to fling them all into a cupboard."

"He was afraid to destroy them without reading them for fear there would be some from friends."

"Then he thought of a trick. He told his relatives and friends to mark their letters in a certain way—I can't tell you how—and he used to open only the letters with this mark."

In this way he could correspond with his friends. Those begging letters have just spoilt his life. He used to be such a happy, jolly fellow, and always laughing. Now he never laughs. He is gloomy and miserable. It's an awful shame."

HANGCHOW NEWS

OPENING OF ROAD FROM SHANGHAI

DEATH OF FOREIGN AVIATOR

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

HANGCHOW, October 24. The outstanding event of the month since I last wrote has been the opening of the Shanghai-Hangchow motor road to the public. This was officially opened on the Double Tenth and 200 cars came over the road that day. As roads go outside Shanghai it is not bad, and was in Hangchow are pleased with it, though the Shanghaianders do not seem to be so agreeably inclined towards the road. Parts of it are rather a strain on the driver owing to the numerous curves and bends, but a branch road is being made to obviate this difficulty, and is about as straight as any road could be.

Fatal Accident.

On the 15th several people came to Hangchow for the week-end, and there was a bad accident on the road, when a car with five Chinese passengers, owing to the driver losing control of the car, went over the road, and fell several feet into a sandy patch by the river side.

Dr. Hu Xi Hu, medical officer of health to the municipality of Greater Shanghai, died instantaneously it is thought of a fractured skull, and three others were seriously wounded, the fifth having only a few bruises. Mr. Marsh, of the Auto-Palace, Shanghai, was spending the week-end in Hangchow and when he heard the news of the accident he called the C.M.S. Hospital to go out to Hai-nien, a distance of 68 kilometres, to render what assistance was necessary, but when Drs. Sturton and Chung arrived they found Dr. Hu dead. The Municipal ambulance was also called out.

New Church Opened.

There was a new church opened on the 18th, called the "Chinese Church of Jesus," and the Mayor very graciously consented to perform the opening ceremony in spite of his present sickness. Large crowds attended, and the well-wishers were many. The Bishop of Chekiang preached the sermon, and Dr. K. C. Wang gave a short history of this movement. The "Chinese Church of Jesus" is an independent movement, and has about 300 Church-members, all of whom must bring one member each into the church during a year.

There is no foreign money or influence in the movement at all, it originated with the Chinese and the members look to no foreign source for the supply wherewith to carry on. We wish them every success.

The new promises will shed about 400 people, and is a fine building of three storeys, the second storey being used for reading and sitting rooms.

Loss to Flying School.

The members of the Flying School have sustained a great loss in the death of Mr. William Hansford Pennington, aged 32, who died at the C.M.S. Hospital after a short but severe illness. A funeral service was held in the C.M.S. Hospital Chapel and the casket was sent to Shanghai for cremation purposes.

The new Electricity Works at Zashou are in the last stages of completion, and the Rotarians were invited to tiffin there yesterday. When completed these Works will be the most up-to-date electrical plant in the world.

Dr. Clay, Principal of the London Polytechnic, is on a visit to Hangchow accompanied by his wife and daughter.

SWATOW NOTES

MERCHANTS AND THE
NATIONAL DEBTGOVERNMENTS STERN REPLY TO PETITIONS

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

SWATOW, Oct. 30. In my previous letters I referred to the petitions made to the municipal authorities by the Chinese Chamber of Commerce, and the former have since replied in the following terms.

Highways—Eastern Districts.

The Chamber's petition to reduce the instalment payment to $30,000 has been rejected. The authorities intimate, on the other hand, that the Chamber of Commerce should advise and encourage the people to take up bonds to the value of $200,000 and hurry up with the work. The former request to postpone the scheme was also refused and the Mayor has sent his secretary to inform the Chamber that the question about Highways was an urgent one. The bond system is to be on the same lines as at Canton—the merchants buying $2 worth for every hundred dollars of capital. The landlords will be asked to contribute the equivalent of one month's house tax (10 per cent.), as a sum of $50,000 is required to buy guns.

National Debt.

The government has also replied to the Chamber of Commerce on this question. Its decision remains unchanged, in that the merchants must bear the blunt of the national debt by contributions according to the capital of their business. This suggestion has not been accepted by the merchants, and another meeting will be held.

Relief.

The Chamber of Commerce has been requested to ask the various Guilds and Unions to raise funds for the relief of soldiers in the north-east of the province. It is expected this proposal will gain the whole-hearted support of the people.

Recent Murder.

The trial of the murderer of the cashier of the railway company—the young and downcast son of one of its shareholders—was opened in the police court on Wednesday. The accused pleaded guilty to the charge and sentence of death was passed on him. During the proceedings the accused was offered mercy if he would give information as to his accomplices. He declared there were none and he would not disclose their names if there were. The lad bore up bravely in court and the police have deferred the execution in the hope of tracing additional suspects.

COL. KU YUN OHENG DISMISSED

Hankow, Oct. 27.—Col. Ku Yun Oheng, Commissioner of Public Safety for Hankow, was dismissed from office yesterday by an order of the Hupen Provincial Department of Civil Affairs. He has been placed under detention pending formal trial on charges of corruption.—Kuo Min.

The fights were evenly matched, the Argylls and the Lincolns, winning five fights each.

Before the presentation, however, Col. Boys extended hearty congratulations to the winners as well as to the other competitors.

He said that he had witnessed clean, hard fighting, an example of real Army boxing.

"Perhaps," he said, "there was one exception, but I think you will all agree with me that it was done in the excitement of the moment and not intentional."

Thanks were also due to the referees, Major Shillingworth, and to the two judges and to Mr. Williams and Mr. Graham for their hard work.

Col. Boys added that the Argylls were going away this week and that the Lincolns owed them a deep debt for their kindness and, he said, "I am sure you will all join with me in wishing them a good voyage and every happiness."

RUGBY FOOTBALL AT HOME

THE COUNTRIES AND THEIR PROSPECTS

IRELAND AND ENGLAND

Ireland is far too much of an unknown quantity to offer much encouragement to a prophet of any kind. All that can be said is that they appear to have a good choice of full-backs in Egan, Morris, and Ridgway; S. L. Waide, of Oxford, should again be one of the most dangerous wings playing, and if G. R. Beamish remains fit and keen to lead a pack that probably will include three of the most promising young forwards in the world in Russell, Ross, and Higgins, they will give Scotland and Wales hard games over in Ireland and provide plenty of excitement at Twickenham on February 11. Scotland may be expected to make a big effort to reorganize her forces, and it will be surprising if this season they do not discover that B. R. Tod is the natural partner of Logan. Scottish forward play appears to lack the old weight and fire. It would be a good thing for Rugby generally if that state of affairs were to be ended.

Last but not least—certainly not in promise—there is England. If her clubs were to maintain a rather higher standard of play than most of them did last season, there would be no doubt of England's excellent prospects in the international competition. Once the painful lessons of the South African and Welsh matches had been assimilated last season, England were able to outfight Ireland at Dublin and outplay Scotland at Twickenham, most of the players who assisted in those victories still are available, and in several cases likely to be much the better for the experience.

The polished T. W. Brown, of Bristol, and R. J. Barr, of Leicester, whose first experience of big Rugby was in the memorable and solitary victory over the South Africans, and who subsequently was given three searching tests at Twickenham, Swansea, and Dublin, should contest the full-back position. It is difficult to think of two better players.

Men of Promise.

C. D. Arvid, who will captain Blackheath and it is to be hoped, inspire that great club to efforts worthy of its reputation, also will be likely to captain England again from the wing. D. W. Burland, who is the new captain of Bristol, is bound to be reconsidered as a centre if only because of the number of points he scored for England last season. R. A. Gerrard, of Bath, equally so, will be watched as the most promising of all the younger centres. Likely men who have yet to be capped are R. C. Mercer, of Durham, and G. M. Seldon, of Walsall, each a centre.

VARSIITY NEWS

DR. YEON LEAVING FOR AMERICA

Dr. Yeon Guan Eng, who graduated last summer, has been appointed surgeon on the s.s. Proteus which will leave the Colony on Thursday for Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle. He hopes to be back in Hong Kong by January next.

Dr. Yeon is very popular among the undergraduates, and has represented the Varsity in tennis for the last five years.

Athletic Club.

Dr. R. H. Kotewall, LL.D., has been elected President of the Varsity Athletic Club. Besides this post, Dr. Kotewall also holds that of President of the Varsity Football Club and President of the Photographic Club.

Other newly-elected office-bearers of the Athletic Club are:—Vice-Presidents: Sir Wm. Hornell, Mr. Kwok Siu Lau, Mr. Paul Lauder, Prof. W. Taid, Dr. L. T. Ride, and Mr. Sun Pak Ming; Chairman: Mr. K. P. Gan; Hon. Secretary: F. R. Zimmer; Captain of the Athletic Team: Mr. A. T. Lee; Vice-Captain: Mr. N. Vargasoff.

ALLEGATION OF FRAUD

BAIL OF $100,000 GRANTED TO MERCHANT.

Bail of $100,000 was granted to Chan Sik Nin who was brought before Mr. Schofield at Central Magistrate yesterday in connection with a charge in which it is alleged that he had forged and uttered a power of attorney and with it to have taken control of the King Fok Wo firm at 68, Bonham Strand East.

Mr. Hin Shing Lo (instructed by Mr. Peter Sin) prosecuted and Mr. F. X. D'Almada, senior, defended. The case was adjourned.

BOWLER AUSTRALIA MOST FEARS

BOWLES THE YORKSHIRE GIANT.

Melbourne, Oct. 22.—"Bowles will be the greatest danger to the Australian Test teams," declared Dr. Hockin, New Zealand cricket enthusiast, who arrived here to-day from England.

Dr. Hockin anticipated that the young Yorkshire giant, who stands 6 ft. 4 in. and who was only chosen at the last moment for the tour, will be able to make the ball bump in such a way as to get many wickets. He considered, however, that none of the other English bowlers would trouble Australia.

Mercer unfortunately may not be available this season. On last year's form, C. O. Tanner, Gloucester, may well hold his position on the right wing. At half-back chief interest will be focused upon W. Elliott, of United Services, who, thrown into important Rugby over-season perhaps last season, yet managed to emerge with a fair amount of credit and promise.

At forward, taking as a basis the names of the players who helped England to win their last two matches with some show of real fight and distinction, and daring also to hope that the circulated appeal of the International Board will lead to an all-round improvement in scrummaging, there is every reason to suppose that an effective pack will be placed in the field as early as January 21, the date of the Welsh match at Twickenham. Men like N. L. Evans, R. G. S. Hobbs, Marine Webb, A. Vaughan Jones, R. J. Longland, and R. S. Roberts all should have benefited by last year's experience, and it is to be hoped that the leadership of B. H. Black in the centre of the back row also will be possible.

The Trial games this year will be at Sunderland on December 3; Torquay on December 17; and Twickenham on January 7, the same date as the final Welsh Trial.

SOLDIER'S TRICK AT KASHING

COFFIN BILL AS INSTRUMENT FOR SQUEEZE

Kashing, Che., Oct. 15.—The "Double-Tenth" passed without any sort of outbreak, Government officials, Customs and Post Office employees being on duty as usual. The numerous schools complied with strict instructions to observe the regular routine. Patriotic fervour was held in reserve.

An enterprising cloth merchant opened a new four-story reinforced concrete shop on the best corner of Main street and the new highway. He advertised two dollars' worth of cloth for one dollar. Such crowds came from the city and surrounding districts that traffic was jammed and extra police fully armed were called to prevent rioting. Sales were so lively and stocks diminished so rapidly, that other cloth merchants also reduced prices. Crowds kept on coming and buying. Instead of a "three days opening" it has become "woman's week."

Early and late, women of all sorts may be seen coming with purses or money held in hand or going with a parcel or parcels under their arms. Some merchants in other lines who have also reduced prices, are sharing in the outgo of goods and the intake of dollars.

A Coffin Trick.

For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain" the following may be unusual if not peculiar. A few days ago, a man in a soldier's uniform went to a coffin shop and told the proprietor that a subordinate official had just died at the Mission Hospital. The shopkeeper suspicious of all mankind, of soldiers especially, offered to send his assistant with the soldier to the hospital, get a certificate and deliver the coffin selected. As the two came near the hospital, the soldier suddenly disappeared in an alley. The assistant went on to the hospital there to learn that there might be living soldiers but certainly no dead one on the premises. Conjecturally, if the pretended soldier had secured the bill for a coffin, he, instead of going to headquarters to make a claim on the military authorities, would use the document to extort money from the gentry or some other person of means who would be afraid to refuse to pay.

To the credit of the Higher Commanders, these sham soldiers when caught and convicted are severely punished. Some are beheaded, others are shot. Inquiring why the difference I was told that it is much more shameful here and bitter here after for a criminal to have his head cut off than to expire with a bullet through his brain or his heart. Fashions change, for the equal of the old time gall, we have an approach to a modern prison. Instead of seeking and rotting in the dark, long term prisoners now have more light, more air and varied hand work to keep them busy. However, few seem to be eager for these inside comforts, especially since the new anti-opium crusade began. After the arrest of a few sellers and smokers, an exodus of some suspected citizens was quite sudden.

Taxes on Boats.

A word of warning should go out to foreign owners of motor-boats running in Chekiang waters. It seems that the provincial authorities have a licence scale for all sorts of boats. Anyone is likely to be held up by armed water police demanding the Chekiang licence fee regardless of any other papers on board. Not only so, but the tax is dated from time of purchase of the boat or from the date the operating of the law began. Sometimes fines are imposed.

To save annoyance and delay, any foreigner coming into Chekiang or his own boat should get himself fully informed before doing so. The Chinese Customs or owner's Consul might be able to suggest procedure. The Head Office of the Chekiang Boat License Bureau is in Hangchow, but British consular agents seem to be numerous.

SEQUEL TO RECENT BRAWL

TWO MEN CHARGED WITH MANSLAUGHTER.

Following the death of Tong Tat, a market coolie, who was admitted to hospital following a brawl on the waterfront recently, a charge of murder has been brought against Lo Chung and Lo Tack, who were originally brought before the Court on a charge of doing the victim grievous bodily harm. It is alleged that bamboo poles were used in the fight.

The new charge was mentioned by Detective Inspector John Murphy when the coolies appeared on remand before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Police Court yesterday. The officers said that consequent on this development, he would want a week's remand to enable the Public Prosecutor to be brought into the proceedings. He explained that the charge may be modified to manslaughter after consultation with Mr. J. A. Fraser.

Accused were formally remanded for a week. Mr. Horace Lo is appearing on their behalf.

THE WEEK-END AT THE PENINSULA

DINNER DANCE AND SYMPHONY CONCERT

The large number of diners that participated at the Peninsula Hotel's Room Dinner Dance
last Saturday enjoyed a very pleasant evening. The popular artists
"Hugo and Josephine" delighted with their clever dancing displays and were called upon for repetitions.
These dinner dances function in the Rose Room nightly, Sundays excepted, and at intervals after dinner
these accomplished dancers perform which is proving a decided attraction. This week they are again giving a complete change.

The concert provided by the band of the South Wales Borderers on Sunday night was a striking success and the Bandmaster, Mr. J. L.
Giles, is to be highly congratulated on this excellent and impressive rendering of a splendid selection of contemporary compositions, most of them well-known favourites.
The large attendance of listeners present afforded every man well-deserved recognition and applause was constant demand.

It was without doubt an exceptional musical treat of very high standard, and it will be a pleasure to hear this talented band again on some future occasion.

NEW MORALS FOR OLD

NEXT OFFERING AT QUEEN'S

A trade notice states:—
We all take our caps off to Lewis Stone as the actor with the fastest memory in pictures. Such was the unanimous verdict of Robert Young,
Margaret Perry, Laura Hope Crewes, Myrna Loy and Jean Hersholt who acted with Stone in "New Morals for Old," and were constantly impressed by the fact that he never memorized his lines until just before a scene was taken, but nevertheless was invariably letter-perfect.

This knack, as he calls it, served Stone throughout the major portion of a screen career in which he has earned for himself an enviable status as one of the cinema's foremost character players. Point out an outstanding screen success and you will usually find Stone's name among those leading the cast. Most recently he has been seen in "Grand Hotel," "Letty Lynton," "The Wet Parade," "Night Court," and "Mata Hari." In "New Morals for Old," playing from tomorrow at the Queen's Theatre, he has the important role of the old-fashioned father who cannot reconcile himself to the modern ideas of his children.

WODEHOUSE COMEDY AT QUEEN'S

"BROTHER ALFRED."

A trade notice states:—
During the production of "Brother Alfred," the P. G. Wodehouse and Herbert Westbrook comedy, which Henry Edwards directed for B.I.P., an unheeded incident occurred which nearly proved disastrous for three of the principal artists concerned.

By the side of a yacht Bobbie Comber and Elsie Randolph are seen together in a rowing boat, in which the former is endeavouring to reduce weight. Henry Wenman, another of the principal actors, who is forced to leave the yacht in a hurry, had to leap into the vacant seat, beside Elsie nearly capsizing the boat.

His first attempt was a very gingerly affair; so was the second,
but at the third try the three players were flung into the water, the boat overturned and sank. The water was over eight feet deep and considerable alarm was felt for the unlucky ones' safety. However, they were all expert swimmers, and suffered no ill-effects from the wetting.

"THE LOST SQUADRON"

RKO RADIO PRODUCTION
AT CENTRAL THEATRE

A trade notice states:—
The self-sacrificing brotherhood of men... air thrills galore...
spectacular airplane crashes...
and a glorious romance are combined in a vivid air thriller which opens to-day at the Central Theatre.

The picture is RKO Radio's "The Lost Squadron," starring Richard Dix, with a remarkable supporting cast, in the first film to give a truthful, entertaining and always thrilling story of the making of aviation movies in Hollywood. Like most Dix, starring vehicles, the film abounds in action to please the men, plus a romance that will have a strong appeal for women, while the children will revel in its thrills.
All in all "The Lost Squadron" is a picture the entire family should
see. Based on the stirring, adventures of the film stunt aviators—men who risk their lives for the sake of injecting thrills in the pictures—the film tells the story of these nerveless danger seekers in relation to actual movie making. Thus,
"The Lost Squadron" departs from the accepted stereotyped form of story-telling and presents a double drama of great strength and suspense.

The unusualness of the film is seen also in the characterizations.
Mary Astor plays the role of a screen actress who is married to an eccentric director, Eric Von Stroheim. The director is the arch-villain, a man who has no qualms over the tragedies of crashes and injuries incidental to the making of thrilling air epics.

"ONE HEAVENLY NIGHT"

EVELYN LAYE AT THE KING'S

A trade notice states:—
Evelyn Laye, the English light opera star and comedienne who makes her American screen bow in
"One Heavenly Night," at the King's Theatre faced an ordeal during her work in that picture which comes to few stars. Picture to yourself her setting out from London to traverse the Atlantic, journeying on to Hollywood, leaving the scenes of her present and past triumphs, and so far as she knew, jeopardizing her entire career, in the fulfillment of a picture contract with Samuel Goldwyn, producer of the piece.

True, she had appeared successfully on the New York stage in "Bittersweet," but her task at the end of her journey was somewhat different. In "Bittersweet," an English production, she was surrounded by a company from "home." She was singing and acting in her natural surroundings—
the speaking stage. In Hollywood, and to Hollywood people, she was a stranger. She had never met the director, George Fitzmaurice, nor the principals of her supporting cast, Jones Bolles, Leon Errol, and Lillian Tashman.

Of the author of "One Heavenly Night," Louis Bromfield, she knew only that he was a distinguished American novelist, and of the adapter, Sidney Howard, that he was an equally distinguished playwright.

Experienced singer and comedienne though she was, she had to learn a new technique, and to cope with the temperaments of countless important people both on the set and off; all of whom were strangers, in a strange land, speaking with a strange accent and exhibiting strange habits.

That her charming personality is faithfully registered on the screen in "One Heavenly Night" huggers well for the success of the picture and for its modest and lovely star, Evelyn Laye.

"AMATEUR DADDY"

NEXT PICTURE AT KING'S

A trade notice states:—
Thrills, action, excitement, and romance are part of the daily existence of film stars; but now and again a story comes along that intermingles these qualities so closely and so rapidly that even a veteran player must call upon every faculty at his command to handle the role.

Such a story is "Amateur Daddy," Warner Baxter's latest Fox picture which opens on Thursday next at the King's Theatre. During its filming, Baxter was called upon to perform no less than eight dramatic episodes, each of which was attended with extreme personal danger.

First, as a construction engineer, Baxter is seen in an accident which sweeps him from a steel girder high above the floor of a mountain canyon.

Following the accident, in which his best friend is killed, Baxter goes to the little town of Scotch Valley, in California, to care for the orphaned children of his friend. There he finds their little ranch the object of a despicable neighbour's aversion.

As a reprisal for his physical defect, David Landau, who portrays the neighbour, next resorts to a bomb to blow up the ranch's irrigation canal. The filming of this scene called for Baxter to be "within range of the falling debris, a ticklish enough spot for anyone despite the extreme care which studio technicians, employ in the use of explosives.

Landau then stars up mob hatted against Baxter that ends with a masked group of infuriated neighbours taking Baxter to a near-by field where they tie him to a tree and proceed to whip him.

This brings on the tense dramatic climax of the picture, which includes a stirring court battle and a shooting affray in which Baxter is involved.

The supporting cast includes such well-known players as Dorothy Tor-don, Joel McCrea, and Robert Armstrong, all of whom are local favourites.

UNDERSTUDY TO STAR IN A TALKIE

BIG CHANCE AFTER SEVEN YEARS IN LONDON

A beautiful young Australian actress, who has been waiting in England, seven years for fame to smile on her, is at last to have her name in electric lights.
The talkies have brought her the star part which many strange turns of fate have so far denied her in the theatre.

Miss Nancy Brown, a lovely brunette with sparkling eyes, has a most distinctive success as the gipsy heroine of "The Maid of the Mountains," which has just been made into a talkie at Elstree.
She acts with suitable gipsy fire and sings the famous tunes of the musical comedy in a full, sweet voice.

Yet for seven years she had to be content with understanding famous stars of the West End stage.
Her last, West End engagement was in "The Cat and the Fiddle" at the Palace Theatre. She understudied Miss Edith Day in four shows at Drury Lane.

Now her success in "The Maid of the Mountains" assures her of a brilliant future if the film studios do not neglect the opportunity offered them.

"I Cried With Joy."
Miss Brown says that she had five months of suspense before she knew she had been given the leading women's part in the talkie.
"I made a bet," she said, "and then I thought they had forgotten all about me. When at last I heard I had been chosen I cried with joy, and that made my mother cry too."

Two other first talkie successes in this picture are those of Mr. Harry Welchman and Mr. Albert Burdon.
Mr. Welchman repeats his old stage part of the brigand-hero. His voice records most attractively, and he acts with a great air of romance. He, too, is a valuable film
"discovery."

Mr. Burdon is the little comedian who appeared in "Evergreen."
His humour is of the Chaplin kind,
and his part of Tonto in the film should add London popularity to his already large provincial reputation.

"SUNSHINE SUSIE"

NEXT WEEK AT KING'S THEATRE

"Sunshine Susie" is by popular request being shown again at the King's Theatre from Wednesday, 9th instant. Everyone will remember this delightful film, with Kenzie Muller, Owen Nares and Jack Hulbert in the leading roles.
Jack Hulbert, as a bank commissionaire, and, in his spare moments the leader of a music club, has the part of his life-time, and the "magic feet," beloved of London, are at their most wonderful. The film is brim-full of romance, pretty music comedy of the most delightful kind.

has undergone considerable adaptation as a talkie, and while the songs have been retained, quite a large part of the picture is devoted to broad comedy. It should be a great popular success.

&
FACT.

Will's Pretty Face.

Willi Fritsch, the popular German film star, who is the idol of hundreds of thousands of female fans, suffered a bad legal defeat
at the hands of the Dresden Court.
Fritsch had asked for an injunction restraining a well-known publishing house from circulating his caricature which, in the star's opinion, not only over-emphasizes his characteristic traits but grossly misrepresents him, thus damaging his reputation as one of Germany's "beautifullest." The court however could not see the point and decided "not guilty" for the publishers. One of the best-known films starring Fritsch together with Jillian Harvey, is the Ufa production "The Three of the Gasoline-Station."—Transocean Kvomin.

Expressive Legs.

The most expressive legs in Hollywood are wanted!
To the girl who fills the "Cin-drella slipper" will go an important role in Paramount's picture "The Girl Who Sings." The characteristics of Ernest Hemingway's
"Farewell to Arms."
The girl will act on an entire sequence of scenes with her legs and her voice; Frank Borzage, the Director, explained. At no time will her face be shown, regardless of how beautiful she may be. She will work in scenes with Helen Hayes, Gary Cooper and Adolphe Menjou.

The winning legs must be attractive, alluring and expressive. The girl must be able to express emotions by the movements of her legs. She will have a slipper on only one foot and will thus be given the added advantage of being able to express ideas with her toes, Borzage said.

"I want legs with a blonde temperament, if you know what I mean," Borzage asserted.

Medical Attention.

Dr. Neill has for years been ministering as Medical Officer to the ailments and casualties at B.I.P.'s studios at Elstree, but in all that time he has never seen a film in the making. He was particularly pleased and interested therefore when he was called in as medical supervisor by Benn Levy, the director, for scenes in "The Case of Lady Cumber."

Lila Lee.

Taking the biggest step upward since she started her screen comeback, Lila Lee was signed recently by Paramount to portray the leading feminine rôle in "The Night of June 13."
This is Miss Lee's first rôle in several years for the studio that formerly starred her. She was forced into retirement more than two years ago by illness and has only recently returned to the screen
after a trip to the South Seas.

Since her return she has appeared in three productions: "Radio Patrol," "War Correspondent," and "Exposure." In "The Night of June 13" she will be associated with Olive Brook, Adrienne Allen, Charlie Ruggles, Gene Raymond, Frances Dee and others under the direction of Stephen Roberts.

All of Us Actors!

Every human being is born to be an actor, but those who become famous on the stage or screen are those who never grow up.
This is the assertion of Ernst
Lubitsch, who is now directing Paramount's "The Honest Ringer," with Miriam Hopkins, Kay Francis and Herbert Marshall.

Jeanette Sued.

Damages of $3,000 are being claimed from Miss Jeanette Mac-Donald the film star, by two Paris theatrical producers. They claim that Miss MacDonald, who was Maurice Chevalier's leading lady in "The Love Parade," has broken a contract with them to play the leading part in a production of
"The Merry Widow" at the Gaiety
Lyrique theatre in Paris.

According to the producers, Miss MacDonald was to have started her performance in November, 1931, and to have received $2,000 for 32 appearances. It is admitted that the contract allowed for a short postponement by either party, but the producers protest that Miss MacDonald has delayed so long that it amounts to breach of contract.
